REPORT TO DIRECTORS

Prof. John D. Meyer Makes Annual Report to Board

WORK OF THE SCHOOLS

A Resume of What has Been Accomplished in the Bellefonte Public Schools During The Past Term.

THE PUPILS RECORD OF ATTENDANCE.

BELLEFONTE PA.,
June 8 h, 1908.

To the President and Members of the School Board.

Gentlemen:—

In accordance with the regulations I herewith submit the annual report of the Bellefonte Public Schools under your direction for the past year.

GENERAL STATISTICS

School population (6 to 16 years)	874
Enrollment in public schools	698
Number enrolled on 16 years of age	51
" " in other schools	153
Tuition pupils	48
Excused by law	61
Under 8 years of age not attending	15

Throughout the year the attendance has been good with the exception of the months the various ailments to which children are subject made inroads on our attendance record. The attendance officer was called upon rather frequently but his visits were made to a comparatively small number of houses. Quite a number of parents encourage their children to discontinue school and go to work when they arrive at the legal age. In some cases this is of course necessary but too often are the children allowed to stop on account of the indifference of the parents towards education. On the whole however I believe the parents of our town are realizing more than ever the benefits to be derived from educating their children.

It is a pleasure to report on the matter of tardiness since the number of tardy cases in our schools is less than ever in the history of our schools. The number of cases decreased 129 since last year.

INSTRUCTION.

Apart from thorough knowledge of subject matter there can be no efficient method of instruction and therefore it is absolutely necessary that the teachers prepare themselves thoroughly for the work they have to do. Many of our teachers are ever awake to that which is of advantage to them in instructing the young. They improve themselves by reading teachers magazines and by pursuing other pedogogical studies.

PARENTS DAY

Parents day was again observed in our schools and the increased attendance on the part of the parents is evidence that these days meet with popular approval. The work of the pupils exhibitited on these days has been the means of informing the patrons of our schools about the kind and quality of work done in our schools, but the pupils themselves have received the greatest benefit from seeing what the results of the efforts are when they put themselves down to the test.

SCHOLARSHIP.

The scholarship of the pupils during the year has been satisfactory to the teachers.

GRADING.

During the past year several changes were made in the grading in several rooms of the Stone building. The changes proved to be successful and I would suggest that the grading be so arranged that we have one grade to each room.

LIBRARY.

The placing of another library in the grades has been very helpful and the increased interest in reading throughout the schools warrants the Board in setting aside each year a sum of money to be spent for books for our young people.

PENMANSHIP.

Although a change was made during the past year from the vertical to the modified slant system of writing, the writing in our schools was very satisfactory and it is surprising to note how rapidly and well the change was made. The teachers used more than usual care in looking after the correct habits of position, pen-holding, and movement, and this accounts in a great measure for the good results obtained.

DISCIPLINE.

Throughout the year the teachers handled the various cases of discipline in a capable manner, and in only a few cases were complaints of harshness made, showing that the teachers generally were resourceful in dealing with the matters of discipline as they arose in the school room.

CONCLUSION.

In conclusion I wish to congratulate the pupils in their efforts during the year and I wish to express my appreciation of the helpful co-operation of the teachers and the Board I have received during the year.

Respectfully Submitted,
JOHN D. MEYER,
Supervising Principal.

Col. Damon Four Hot Shots

Col. A. M. Damon, of the Salvation Army, delivered his four hot shots to the Bellefonte people Saturday and Sunday. The Colonel fires direct at the mark and his missiles cannot help but hit. The court house meeting Saturday evening was not very largely attended but he had his message and is always willing to give it to those who are willing to hear. The afternoon being very warm probably prevented the usual attendance at the men's mass meeting in the court house Sunday, but to those who attended the services were helpful. On Sunday morning at the Presbyterian church he was greeted by a large audience and likewise at the Methodist church in the evening when he gave his lecture on darkest America. Although the lecture had been given in Bellefonte a short time ago it did not prove any the less interesting for all in Bellefonte have not yet heard it The Colonel never tires of telling of the good work of the Army, although not in a boastful way, and he never fails to bring the message of salvation to the very door of the sinner's heart.

One thing that the Colonel said Sunday is worth repeating here. He said that some people imagined that all the Salvation Army did was to hold the simple street services which we see nearly every evening. But this is only a small part of their work, most of it being done in a quiet unostentatious way and very little of it is known outside of the Army and the persons helped. He complimented Captain Heather and his wife on the work they are doing in Bellefonte and urged the people to support them in their good work. The illustrated lecture cannot fail to arouse the sympathies of the people for those who are in need of such services as the Salvation Army performs. The Colonel is about to go to another field of labor and the good wishes of the people go with him.

PLATFORM IS OUTLINED

Republicans Outline Principles Upon Which Party Will Stand

INSERT A TARIFF PLANK

Roosevelt and His Policies Will be Endorsed and Other Matters of Importance Will Receive Attention

DEMANDS OF LABOR TO BE RECOGNIZED

Washington, June 7.—That the platform which will be adopted at the Chicago convention and on which the Republican party will stand during the next campaign has been completed with the exception of a few details, which will be left for the committee on resolutions to insert, is the opinion of many who are in the confidence of the Republican leaders. The work has been done by Hon. Wade Ellis, attorney general of Ohio, the draftsman of the Ohio state platform; Senator Hopkins, who will be the chairman of the committee on resolutions; Senator Long, of Kansas, and a few others including the President and Secretary Taft, who have been freely consulted.

The policies of President Roosevelt will be endorsed unequivocally, and this endorsement will be the central idea of the document. These policies will be set forth as the embodiment of the principles of the Republican party, whose achievements will be lauded as at all times wise and beneficent; as ever in the interest of all the people. These principles, it will be declared, are quite in contrast wtih the policies of the Democratic party, which as embodied in the public utterances of its leaders, it will be said, promise nothing good that can be assured of accomplishment.

The Republican party's record as the party of protection and sound money, as the party of progress and good principles, as the party that gave freedom to Cuba and lifted the yoke from the necks of the people of the Philippines and Porto Rico; will be held up for admiration and made a subject of much praise, and the voting public will be asked to continue to patronize the political craft that has carried it across so many streams.

Specifically speaking, more attention has been given by the platform makers to the tariff than to any other subject. There will be an unequivocal declaration for revision; but the disposition is to leave the working out of details to the ingenuity of Congress. The action of the two houses of Congress in instructing the committees which will deal with the tariff to make especial investigation of the situation, will afford sufficient excuse for this course, as the results of these inquiries will be unavailable to the convention, while they will supposedly furnish Congress with a basis for action.

Cognizance will be taken of the demands of labor to the extent of recommending such legislation as will insure labor organizations against snap judgment by the courts in the issuance of injunctions without due notice or necessary hearing.

Mrs. Ellen Davis

Mrs. Ellen Davis died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Harry Williams, in Bush Addition Thursday morning at two o'clock. For some time she had been keeping house for her son in Altoona and about eleven weeks ago when she became too ill to oversee her house she returned to the home of her daughter in Bellefonte, For the past three weeks she had been critically ill with spasmodic asthma, which ailment caused her death,

She was born in Bellefonte January 26, 1852 and was 56 years old last January. With the exception of 4 years she has resided in Bellefonte.

Surviving her are the following children: Mrs. Harry Williams and Mrs. Jacob Barlett, of Bellefonte; Mrs. Philip Labe, of Altoona, and William and Fred, of Altoona, One brother John Davis, of Coleville, and two sisters, Mrs. Lyde Griswold, of Baltimore, Md., and Mrs. Annie Yeager, of DuBois, also survive.

The funeral was held Saturday afternoon from the home of Harry Williams in Bush Addition, Rev. James B. Stein officiating. Interment was made in the Union cemetery.

THE ACADEMY RECEPTION.

Delightful Social Event Held at Popular School Friday Evening.

The annual reception of the Academy occurred Friday evening and proved as anticipated, the most beautiful and successful social event of the season. The grounds illuminated by scores of Japanese lanterns and the main building with its trimmings of electric lights presented a scene of beauty that is difficult to describe. T'is little wonder that several hundred guests assembled at the academy on this interesting occasion. for a surprise and pleasure are always in store. The several committees spent Friday in converting the first floor school rooms and hall-ways into a veritable dreamland. The mural decorations of pictures, pennants and bunting and the decorations of spruce, laurel and flowers were unusually pretty this year, and to add to all the pleasure thus provided, Christy Smith's orchestra seemed to be in a very happy spirit, for their music never sounded prettier than it did Friday night. While the refreshments were being served the students rendered to the delight of every one the overture of their recent minstrel entertainment.

The receiving committee consisted of Mrs. James R. Hughes, Miss Helen Overton, Miss Isabel Hill, Miss Jennie Harper Miss Rebekah Jacobs, Mrs. Minnie Hughes and Mrs. F. T. Cole.

After ten o'clock the guests repaired to the armory and enjoyed the annual dance given under the auspices of the Alumni and under-graduate students. It was one of the prettiest dances ever held in Bellefonte, the music by Smith's Orchestra was inspiring and the refreshments quite to the taste. The happy couples wended their way to their homes during the early hours of the morning and the happy affair had passed into history. The patronesses were Mrs. James R. Hughes, Miss Helen Overton, Miss Isabel Hill, Mrs. D. H. Hastings, Mrs. Ellis Orvis, Mrs. J. H. Lingle, Mrs. Henry Keller, Mrs. Henry Quigley, Mrs. R. G. Hayes, Mrs. John Shugert, Miss Mary Meek and Mrs. John Curtin.

The gentlemen who are responsible for the success of the dance are Mr. Wilson Gephart, Mr. George Hornbrook, Mr. Clarence Bolton, Mr. Gilbert Meyers and Mr. Warren Elsey.

The ball game Saturday afternoon completed the program of pleasure in the closing exercises of the academy and this week the pupils are working hard to pass their final examinations successfully, school closing for the year on Friday, June 12.

This has been in many ways the most prosperous year in the history of the Academy. More students from a distance have been enrolled than ever before, the faculty has been exceptionally strong and many improvements have been made in several phases of the school life. The same strong corps of teachers, a new athletic field and an experienced coach for all athletic teams means that next year will be the banner one for our old academy of which we all feel justly proud as it ends its one hundred and third year of uninterrupted usefulness.

Mrs. Mary J. Holter.

Mary Jane Holter, widow of the late Abraham L. Holter, of Howard, died at her home in that place Thursday morning at 7:45 o'clock. She had been in delicate health for a number of years but of late had been confined to her bed. The sudden death of her husband in 1895 gave her serious heart trouble and this with paralysis was the cause of her death.

Mary Jane Thompson was born in Liberty township on July 8, 1835, making her age almost 73 years. She was married to Abraham L. Holter January 5, 1854 and for many years they resided in Liberty township. Twenty-three years ago they erected a home in Howard and have since resided there. She was a member of the Methodist church of Howard and she and her late husband were always faithful communicants. Mrs. Holter took great pride in the rearing of her children and was a woman of a kindly disposition and a host of friends.

The following sons and daughters are left to mourn their loss: Mrs. Irvin G. Lucas, William H., David E. and J. Frank, all of Howard; Mrs. Belle Ferree, of Encampment, Wyo., and Robert H. of Rochester, N. Y. The following brothers and sisters also survive: John D. and Henry Thompson and Mrs. Wm. H. Neff, of Howard, and Mrs. Rebecca Sayers, of Walker.

The funeral was held Saturday forenoon at 10:30 o'clock and the Rev. Rollin S. Taylor officiating. Interment was made in the Howard cemetery.

BANK CLERK ARRESTED

Charged With Aiding Defaulting Cashier in Peculations

WAS A DISCOUNT CLERK

Bank Examiner Folds Brings Another Charge Against Cashier Montgomery for Additional Shortage.

OTHER ARRESTS WILL FOLLOW SOON

Pittsburg, Pa., June 9,—Bank Examiner William L. Folds, who brought the Allegheny National Bank scandal to a climax, to-night ordered the arrest of Addison S. Altaffer, discount clerk under Cashier William Montgomery of the wrecked bank, on the charge of aiding and abetting Montgomery in abstracting funds from the institution.

Folds swore out two additional informations, the one against Altaffer and one against Cashier Montgomery, alleging an additional shortage of $261,931 in Montgomery's accounts. The dates cited in both informations extend from November, 1905, to December, 1907.

The report was current here tonight that the arrest of Altaffer had been ordered because he had refused to give Examiner Folds some information that might implicate other persons in the looting of the bank.

United States Marshal Stephen P. Stone was unable to locate Altaffer for some time and had his home in Sewickley under surveillance all evening, but Altaffer was finally located and taken into custody at 10 o'clock. He gave $10,000 bail for a hearing Monday.

Persons connected with the United States Court says warrants will be issued for the arrest of others in connection with the bank case within a day or two.

Stoddart—Orvis.

A very pretty yet unostentatious wedding was solemnized at the home of Judge and Mrs. Ellis L. Orvis Thursday evening at six o'clock when Miss Caroline Atwood Orvis and Mr. Wilford Cameron Stoddart, of Germantown, were united in marriage. The Orvis home was prettily decorated for the occasion with plants and flowers. About fifty friends of the bride and groom were present to witness the ceremony which was performed by Dr. William Laurie, the beautiful and impressive ring service being used. Miss Marie F. Stoddart, of New York, a sister of the bridegroom, attended the bride as maid of honor, while Mr. Frank H. Weinsheimer, of Noxen, Pa., acted as best man. After the ceremony an informal reception and wedding dinner were given, The bride and groom departed on the evening train on a wedding trip and will go to Germantown to take up their residence.

Besides those who attended the contracting parties other guests were Mrs. Leonard Stoddart and Miss Marie Stoddart, of New York, mother and sister of the groom; Mrs. W. H. Hudson, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Stull, of Weyncote; Mr. and Mrs. William H. Keller, of Lancaster, Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Sharp, of Williamsport; and Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Harvey, of Lock Haven.

Thomas—Barnhart

The Methodist church was the scene of a very pretty wedding Wednesday evening at 6:30 o'clock when Rev. James B. Stein said the words that made Miss Frances May Barnhart and Mr. Charle Thomas man and wife. The bride was attended by Miss Florence Gregg of Pittsburg as maid of honor and Miss Alice Barnhart and Elizabeth Platts as bridesmaid. Dr. Hinchman of McKeesport acted as best man. Miss Mary Musser was flower girl and S. A. Keefer and Herbert Gray ushers. The wedding march was played by Prof. Hall of the Academy.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Barnhart of this place and for several years has been a trained nurse in Pittsburg and vicinity. The groom is employed as superintendent in the steel works at McKeesport. After their return from a wedding tour to Philadelphia and New York they will take up their residence in McKeesport.

SANUEL H. DIEHL.

One of Bellefonte's Respected Citizens Died at His Home Tuesday Afternoon

On Tuesday afternoon about fifteen minutes before five o'clock another of Bellefonte's respected and useful citizens passed away when Samuel H. Diehl was called to his reward. Mr. Diehl had been ill for the past five months with heart trouble and Bright's disease.

The deceased was born at Laurelton, Union county on November 28, 1847 and was 60 years of age on her last birthday. When a young man he learned the carriage building trade and for some years was located at Aaronsburg. He was located in Montrose, Colorado for some time. He came to Bellefonte in June, 1891, and since that time has been a resident of this place and up to several years ago when his health failed he followed his occupation of carriage building. He served two terms as overseer of the poor of Bellefonte borough and several years ago was the Republican nominee for the legislature. He was also a candidate for county treasurer on the Republican ticket at the last primaries. In religious faith Mr. Diehl was a Methodist and a faithful communicant of that branch of the christian church.

In 1870 he was married to Miss Sara Ellen King of Laurelton, who survives him with one son, Harry, who made his home with his parents. Brothers and sisters as follows also survive the deceased: Alfred Diehl, of Watsontown; Mrs. Daniel Cothaman, of Laurelton; Mrs. Tamar Lucas, Kale and William Diehl, of Montrose, Col.; Charles, in Utah and Henry in Oklaboma.

Funeral services will be conducted at the house Thursday evening at 8 o'clock and on Friday morning the remains will be taken to Laurelton where interment will be made in the Lincoln chapel cemetery.

Academy Primary Department Exercises.

The primary department of the Bellefonte Academy under the charge and supervision of Miss Overton and her very competent assistants, Miss Harper and Miss Jacobs, held their closing exercises on Tuesday morning on the tennis court adjacent to their school building. The program was unique and patriotic. Every nuber had to do with the flag. An immense American flag formed a canopy over the court. The large porch at the rear of the school building was beautifully draped and enclosed with American flags as was also the tennis court, while flags of foreign nations were conspicuously arranged providing quite an educational feature. To and to the beauty of the flag decorations were the smiling sunshine, a large and enthusiastic audience of parents and friends and last but not least the bright and happy children who felt and looked so proud as they successfully performed their parts on the program, attired in some attractive and suitable costume. Beyond all question this was the best of the many successful entertainments that have been prepared by Miss Overton since she assumed charge of the primary department, Miss Jacobs at the piano and Miss Harper helping with the singing afforded a support for Miss Overton that guaranteed the success the interested audience pronounced the entertainment to be.

The program was as follows: Singing of America; recitation "The Color Bearer," a march by pupils carrying American flags; "Our Flag" a recitation by six boys carrying flags of different periods; other recitations and songs followed. An interesting number was an "American Negro Cradle Song" by five girls dressed in the costume of a Kentucky Mammy and carrying black dolls. "My Country's Flag" was a pleasing number, it was a recitation, the pupils being dressed in the costume of the country they represented and carrying their country's flag. Each pupil described the country he or she represented. All joined in a march placing the foreign flag on the breast and raising the American flag: Mr. James R. Hughes made an address that was quite appropriate and the exercises closed with the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner," in which every body joined enthusiastically.

Rev. Schmidt Receives Degree.

At the annual meeting of the board of trustees of Franklin and Marshall college at Lancaster Tuesday afternoon the degree of doctor of divinity was conferred upon one of our local ministers, Rev. A. M. Schmidt, of the Reformed church. Dr. Schmidt is the second of our ministers to receive this title from Franklin and Marshall, the other being Rev. Dr. William Laurie who was thus honored some years ago.

WANDERED ELEVEN DAYS

Typhoid Fever Sufferer Lost on Mountain Near Carlisle

HORSE FINDS THE WAY

Neither the Young Farmer Nor his Horse are Known to Have Had Any Food for Eleven Days

REMEMBERS LITTLE OF HIS TRIP

Carlisle, June 4.—George W. Bear, a well-known young farmer residing on Walnut Bottom Road near Carlisle, returned yesterday after the seeming desertion of his family for two weeks.

Bear left his wife to drive to his father's home in Perry County, twelve days ago. Yesterday his horse drew his buggy up to his home and his wife recognized her husband seated in the vehicle. Bear was dazed, as it afterwards was shown, from the effects of typhoid fever with which he was quite ill. When he was revived he could hardly realize that he had been wandering through the mountains for eleven days. All that he could remember was that he had been lost in the mountains with his team wedged between two trees. How he lived can only be surmised, though attending physicians stated that on account of his illness with typhoid fever he would eat little or nothing. Some passerby must have found Bear and started him on his road, as his buggy contained a paper sack bolding oats and bearing the name of a Franklin county grain dealer.

People throughout Cumberland County are at a loss to understand how Bear could have been lost in this thickly settled section, but the testimony of the physicians is positive evidence that his mind has been unbalanced for several weeks, and the fact that both horse and man have evidently done without food is additional corroboration.

Potato Bugs Had Return Ticket

Despite the assertion that the potato bug had packed up his goods and chattels and left the country, he has made his appearance already this year, and has given the farmers to understand that in the language of the street he is still on the job. It has been said that the numbers of these bugs are growing less and less every year, and that in a few years they will disappear altogether like their predecessors. However, this may be, they are not going to disappear this year, although one thing is certain, the farmers who raise potatoes would have no objection to such an action on their part.

The potato bug means business, and if those who have decided to raise tubers this year, do not get out their Paris green cans in time, he is liable to make the plants suffer for it. No damage is done to the plants until the young bugs are hatched from eggs as the old bugs that survive the winter are so few that their capacity for devouring the leaves is very small. However when the young bugs are hatched and begin to grow the leaves on the vines begin to disappear and the damage is wrought.

This usually happens about the middle of June, when the farmers are hard at work getting their corn cultivated for the last time in order to start to harvest the hay, and are too busy to give the pesky potato bug a shower of knock out drops. Sooner or later if they intend to raise a crop of potatoes, they must get to work, for the bugs multiply by the millions, and if left alone they will wipe out the whole patch no matter how large, in a few days.

The Making of a Reformer.

An exchange says: You can't always tell what will happen. For instance there is a story of a man who determined to commit suicide. He went to the store and bought a rope, a can of oil, a box of matches, a dose of arsenic and a revolver. He went down to the river and pushed his boat from the shore and waded to where a limb hung over; and tied one end of the rope over the limb and the other around his neck, saturated his clothing with the coal oil, lighting a match and set his clothing afire, took the dose of arsenic, put the muzzle of the revolver to his temple, pushed the boat from under him and pulled the trigger. But the bullet glanced and cut the rope above him and he fell kerflop into the river, the water put out the fire and he got strangled and coughed up the arsenic and rose up and waded out and declared himself a candidate for the legislature on the reform ticket.

Investigating Canned Goods.

The pure food authorities of the state have started in to make a thorough investigation of all canned goods sold in this section and Agent H. L. Banzhoff, at the instance of Dairy and Food Commissioner Foust has been busily engaged the past week purchasing samples in Blair, Centre and Clearfield counties. He has already procured more than 100, which have been forwarded to Dr. William Frear at State College for analysis.

The samples purchased by Mr. Banzhoff include canned tomatoes, corn, beans and other vegetables, potted chicken, ham and veal loaf and other articles sold by grocers. The pure food authorities have had more trouble with articles of this sort than with any other foodstuff and a thorough investigation will be made to ascertain if they are up to the required standard.

Under the pure food law enacted by the legislature at the last session, merchants may place the risk for the selling of improper foodstuffs and the liability for prosecution upon the manufacturers by taking an invoice guarantee. If the goods are found wrong the responsiility can be placed where it be longs. Prosecutions will be made if the samples collected by Mr. Banzhoff show adulterations.

WAS DEALING IN STOCKS

Cashier Montgomery had Mania for Wildcat Schemes

HAD 4 MILLION SHARES

Plunged into Mining Stocks and Invested as low as One Cent up to Hundreds of Dollars

CONFESSION STARTLED THE RECEIVER

Pittsburg, June 3.—William Montgomery, former cashier of the Allegheny National Bank, has finally concluded to open up and tell of the bank's troubles, and to assist Receiver Robert Lyons in winding up the affairs of the bank. He has been approached repeatedly by friends that suffer by the bank's crash, and importuned to disclose where the funds went but heretofore he has maintained a solid indifference to the supplications of his closer friends.

Among there friends was Secretary of the Commonwealth Robert McAfee, who lost his fortune by Montgomery's crime. It was not until Receiver Lyons got after the cashier today, however, that any information that would assist the receiver was obtained.

The disclosures made to Lyons make Montgomery appear to have lost his reason entirely. He confessed to owning upwards of 4,000,000 shares of mining stocks, the present value of which no one can estimate.

The mines in which Montgomery put the bank's money are scattered all along the Pacific Coast from Central America to Alaska. Montgomery seems to have had a mania for buying wildcat mining stocks at whatever price he could get them. He paid for some of the stocks as low as one cent a share, and others ran into hundreds of dollars.

Receiver Lyon in a desperate effort it get some idea of Montgomery's methods that would help him, or give him a lead that would enable him to extricate the bank's affairs from the apparently hopeless tangle, put all the former clerks on the carpet, but they were ignorant of any clew that would be of value to the receiver.

Today Lyon went to jail to saw Montgomery, and the tale Montgomery told startled even the receiver.

Stopping the Leaks.

Co-operation in a new form is bearing fruit upon the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha Railroad, says the New York World. And the example is being followed by the Chicago and Northwestern.

The Omaha scheme was suggested by the management early last winter as a hard-times expedient to carry the company through without the necessity of cutting down the working force or its pay. Employees were called into conferences through their unions and were asked to enter into a mutual scheme of saving. As described a writer in Van Norden's Magazine, these conferences became amazing experience meetings:

Gray-headed engineers told how thousands of tons of coal were consumed unnecessarily and shop men told how locomotives were torn to pieces at a cost of from $100 to $200 when the trouble could have been located by the engineer and the repair made for a few dollars.

Yardmen and brakemen told how cars were smashed almost for the fun of smashing them. Claim agents told how agents receipted for goods without counting barrels and boxes, the company paying for shortages on shipments which were never received. Firemen told of spilling gallons of oil; conductors admitted that they burned one or two extra tons of coal on each trip by leaving the doors and vestibules open, while freight handlers told of cars loaded carelessly dynamite on top of eggs, scrap iron mixed with chinaware; sugar rode comfortably with barrels of oil, etc.

Reform in all these particulars set in after the conferences. Result, a saving of $160,000 in January, cutting to $17,000 a loss of $177,000 in gross earnings, and a further saving of $150,000 in February, bringing about a gain in net earnings. On the Northwestern lines $10,000 a month is being saved by fuel cars alone. One fireman showed in meeting how he saved a shovelful of coal for every mile travelled—a feat which, extended through the system, would mean all by itself a $6,500 gain each month.

There is no reason why such thrifty co-operation as this should be confined to railroad work and wage-saving alone. Applied to every industry, it would prove a mighty force for that preservation of natural resources to which the country is earnestly called.

Miss the Easy Road.

Two young exponents of the strenuous life on Broadway were sitting in a hotel lobby the other evening discussing their plans for making some "big money" in the future. One of them confessed that his salary was "only $45 a week," and he was having a hard time of it in keeping the wolf from the door. Sitting near them was an old gentleman who overheard their conversation and was evidently interested.

"You fellows are making the mistake of your lives," the old gentleman said at last. "You are chasing the will o' the wisp while you have the means of wealth within your grasp. Why, I'm considered pretty well off financially, as you both know, and I never received a salary of $45 a week in my life. But I saved money when I was your age, and I found opportunities for investment that soon put me out of the salary class and made me a business man on my own account. The trouble with young fellows nowadays is that they can't see the opportunities that are given them. They have their eyes glued to the get-rich-quick idea so tightly that they pass by the only sure route to wealth."—New York Globe.

Handwriting.

As a rule, clear handwriting is more common with persons who do not write for a living than with those who do. Authors, for example, are creating something when they write; their mind is concentrated on this creative work; their thoughts are generally ahead of their hand, sometimes a whole sentence, and they hurry to keep pace with them. The result is bad handwriting, but handwriting with individuality in it, if not character. There is a theory that plain writing is most easily forged. This is not true. Obscure signatures are most easily forged and the so called freak signatures, which nobody can read, easiest of all. The best signature and the safest for a man who signs checks is neither too prim nor too involved; just plain, everyday writing, done in the easiest way, according to his temperament. Such a signature expresses as much character as any handwriting can, but it doesn't tell us a thing about the man's moral makeup; not a thing.—Boston Globe.

Wanted His Dues.

A reservation Indian was disconsolate over the breaking of his ax handle. He laid his misfortune before the "farmer" of the reservation, who, through pity, took a new handle from his private stock and adjusted it to the ax. The farmer then noticed that the ax was shockingly dull. So, motioning the owner to turn the grindstone, he expended a half hour's time in sharpening the blade. When the rehabilitated ax was given to the Indian he was childishly gleeful, but still lingered about, indicating by his actions that some feature of the transaction had not been adjusted.

The farmer was a little annoyed and called to an interpreter. "Ask the old fellow what he wants now," he directed.

After an exchange of grunts and gestures the interpreter announced, "He wants 25 cents."

"Twenty-five cents! What for?"

"For turning the grindstone."—Harper's.

The Other Way.

There was a hopeful gleam in the eyes of the young man with a slightly retreating chin as he approached the father of his ladylove.

"Will you give your daughter to me in marriage, sir?" he asked in as firm a tone as he could muster.

"I'm afraid you are not well enough acquainted with her, young man," remarked the father.

"Why, I've seen her twice a week for nearly a year," said the astonished suitor.

"That may all be," said the parent, "but if you knew much about her character you'd have said, 'Will you give me to your daughter in marriage?'"

A Poet's Slip.

A correspondent of London Notes and Queries has "caught out" Mr. Kipling in an extraordinary blunder. He finds it in the "Last Chantey" in these lines:

Then said the souls of the slaves that men threw overboard:
"Kenneled in the picaroon a weary band were we,
But thy arm was strong to save,
And it touched us on the wave,
And we drowsed the long tides idle till thy trumpets tore the sea."

"Of course," says the commentator, "the word Kipling meant to use was barracoon, the technical term for a slave pen. Picaroon means a rogue."

Catching a Cobra.

A driver on the Avontuur railway, South Africa, while staying at the Gamtoos caught a large cobra de capello alive. The cool way in which he did the trick, says a local paper, sent a cold shiver through every one who saw it. He simply caught hold of the point of its tail, gave it a sudden jerk toward him and caught it by the back of the head. He then placed it in a biscuit tin. The snake was three inches in diameter and about four feet long.

Facts Versus Terms.

"Nonsense! You've no toothache. It's simply imagination."

Adjustment of Postmasters Pay.

In making the annual readjustment of of the pay of postmasters, which is based on the amount of business transacted, First Assistant Postmaster General Grandfield found 214 in Pennsylvania entitled to receive more pay after July 1 and 27 the business of whose offices had declined to such an extent that reduction of from $100 to $300 must be made to comply with the law.

Among the places where the pay will be cut at the beginning of the fiscal year are Ambler, Ashland, Bolivar, Burnham, Clifton Heights, Cross Fork, Gallitzin, Hollidaysburg, McKees Rocks, Mercer, Mount Union, Reedsville, South Bethlehem, South Sharon, Spring City and Waynesburg. In nearly every instance be falling off can be traced to some local disturbances. The losses of $200 or more in the pay of postmasters are more than offset by gains as large as that or larger in the following offices: Avoca, Clarion, Darby, Ebensburg, Ellwood City, Fairchance, Jeannette, Mahaffey, Meadville, Montrose, Narberth, Olyphant, State College, and Tioga. Several places the salary will be increased $300.

Some of the places in the Central part of the state will receive the following increases: Conemaugh, $1600 to $1,700; Cresson, $1,700 to $1,900; DuBois, $2,700 to $2,800; Osceola Mills, $1,700 to $1,800; Philipsburg, $2,300 to $2,400; State College, $2,100 to $2,300; Indiana, $12,500 to $2,600. The Bellefonte office is evidently holding its own.

Municipal Ownership Pays

That municipal ownership and co-operation is a money saving way of doing things was recently demonstrated by the people of Smullton when they supplied their little town with water. A corespondent to one of the papers tells of the work as follows:

Every family in our burg is greatly pleased with the pure water that has been recently put in each house; listen to the following then see what you think of the Smulton Water Co. Never in the history of any town was there more brotherly love shown than was here exhibited; only two weeks elapsed from the time they sent their orders for pipes until water was running in every house, and that time not one word was broken nor any hard fellings caused; all was peace and love. The water was piped 1183 feet with two inch pipe; the pipes leading from the main line to the houses included only cost $15.60 a family. This amount includes all fixtures, spigots and plumbing, and last, but the best, the company has not a cent of debt, but have a sinking fund started. The plumbing was done by our plumber W. J. Brumgart; he is certainly fixed for that kind of work.

A Few Words of Timely Advice.

The Williamsport Gazette & Bulletin which favors buying from home merchants first, last and always, has the following to say about the mail order houses and we refer it to Bellefonters:

While Williamsporters are not much infatuated with the mail order business as many other towns of this size, there are nevertheless quite a number of our people who send their money elsewhere for goods which they could purchase fully as satisfactorily from Williamsport merchants and dealers. It is to this class a few words can be addressed.

Who sympathized with you when your little girl was sick? Was it Sears & Roebuck? Who carried you last winter when you were out of a job and had no money? Was it Montgomery, Ward &. Company, or was it your home merchant? When you want to raise money for a church or some needy person in the city do you write to the Fair store in Chicago, or do you go to your home merchant? How much does Siegel, Cooper & Company give towards keeping up sidewalks or paying the minister s salary? When you were sick how many nights did Hibbard, Spencer, Bartlett & Company sit up with you? When your loved one was buried, was it your home merchant who dropped the tear of sympathy and uttered the cheering word, or was it Marshall, Field & Company.

"Trade at home" should be the watchword of every citizen. We need a successful community, but we can't have it if all the money is sent away from home. If we send all our money away for cook stoves, silks, groceries, clothing, furniture, etc., how are our local merchants going to dispose of their stock? There is no class of merchants anywhere more wideawake than those of Williamsport and they all deserve success. Williamsport money should be kept circulating in Williamsport and add what they can do it.

The Automatic Gun Case.

Game Commission has made every arrangement to carry to the higher courts of the state the case of the commonwealth against Thomas McCoombs, charged with unlawfully using an automatic gun for the purpose of killing gamein this Commonwealth andinwhich case the Delaware county court recently held the law unconstitutional, upon the ground that it attempted to interfere with the rights of manufacturers, Secretary Kalbfus says:

"The Game Commission is perfectly satisfied to have this question determined as speedily as possible and expresses the hope that in the meantime no one in this state will permit himself to be led into error through the reading of the misleading circulars sent out broadcast through this and other states by men whose sole object appears to be the realization of profits to themselves through the sale of these guns, and who utterly ignore the subject of preservation or protection to game."

WILL TEST HEPBURN ACT

Mine Owning Railroads are Sued in United States Court.

SEVEN ARE INVOLVED

PENNSY AND READING ARE INCLUDED.

More promptly than was expected, the United States government began suit Friday against the coal carrying railroads under the "commodities clause" of the act to regulate commerce by filing in the United States court in Philadelphi a bill in equity and a petition for an alternative writ of mandamus, which was granted and will be argued on June 16th.

Seven bills of equity and seven petitions for alternative writs of mandamus were filed against as many railroad companies, the Pennsylvania, the Reading, the Central Railroad of New Jersey, the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, the Delaware & Hudson, the Erie and the Lehigh Valley.

All the arguments upon the whole issue pro and con, will probably be presented on June 16th. The only highly significant question to be raised is that of the constitutionality of the so-called Hepburn amendment to the act to regulate commerce which went into effect on May 1st.

The seven complaints are all substantially the same, the only difference being the names of the corporations, the designation of the properties which they control and details as to the identity of certain directors in the controlling and the subsidiary companies.

The Benefits of Insurance.

According to official statistics, just issued by the Insurance Press, residents of Bellefonte received $14,550 in life insurance payments during the year 1907.

The above amount covers all death claims settled, matured endowments, policies written in foreign countries and paid here, death claims and benefits paid by fraternal orders and brotherhoods, claims paid in cases of fatal injury by accidents, etc.

Williamsport received $219.125 in life insurance payments, and stands 110 on the list of cities in the United States receiving $100,000 or more. Renovo received $8,592 and other dearby towns as follows: Beech Creek, $2000; Bellefonte, $14 550; Clearfield, $39,445; Jersey Shore, $2,900; Milton, $15,360; Muncy, $11,200; Newberry, $9,500; St. Marys, $5.500; Ridgway, $27,500; Salona, $2,000; Northumberland, $12,500; Lock Haven, $67,812.

To the pessimist and the person prejudiced in regard to life insurance, the above figures should furnish a convincing argument. Who can measure the amount of distress and suffering which the above payments have alleviated? The business of life insurance is one of the greatest assets in our national life and no prudent man should be without a reasonable amount for the protection of his family or business.

To Take Advantage of Fruit Crop.

With the promise of an abundant yield of small fruits, such as strawberries, peaches, plums, cherries, currants and raspberries, which means prices within reach of the wage earner, there comes a discordant note that the prices of fruit jars have been advanced to extremely high figures. The output of the factories is said to be controlled by speculators who, in the expectation of a large fruit crop, have gradually increased the price, until they are almost on par with the high rate obtained in 1893.

The indications are that there will be an abundance of fruit at comparatively low prices on the market this summer, and the increased figure on the "standard" fruit jar will be felt by the families with an average income. The rise in the price of sugar will not effect the housekeeper, as the increase will amount to but a few cents. The peach crop, especially the freestones, is expected to be very heavy this season.

The state board of agriculture estimates the broom corn crop of Kansas at 12,158,200 pounds as against 10,715,615 pounds in 1906.

One of the largest grain checks ever reported from the state of Washington was for $45,364, paid to a wheat raiser of that state for 62,000 bushels of wheat, the product of a 1,500 acre field

The authorities in charge of the management of affairs at Chicago university have lately decided to add a completely equipped dairy department to the courses which they already offer. This will include, besides thorough courses of instruction, an up to date dairy of pure bred Holstein cattle of well known milking strains.

With a view to determining the cost of filling silos in different sections of the country the government last year tabulated the experience of thirty-one farmers and, after exhaustive inquiry as to methods and details, found that the minimum expense for filling was 46 cents per ton, the maximum 86, while the average for the total number was 64 cents.

One of the remarkable industrial developments of the Pacific coast has been that which has been noted in connection with the salmon packing business. No salmon was packed for export until 1870, when there were two small canneries on the Columbia river. Today there are twenty-three such establishments, fifteen on the Oregon and eight on the Washington side of the river. The present annual output of the fish is 1,000,000 cases, worth $9,230,000.

The effect of a thoroughbred sire in the matter of improving the milk capacity of dairy cows has lately been given a practical demonstration at the New York state dairy farm. A scrub or common cow was taken which tested 220 pounds per year. Her calf, from a thoroughbred dairy sire, showed a butter yield of 275 pounds of butter fat per year, while two cows of the fourth generation gave 450 pounds of butter each. These results would seem to give a black eye to the forty dollar bull theory held by some.

With clover seed bringing the price it did this year, in the neighborhood of $14 per bushel, there was great temptation to adulterate it with harmful or worthless weed or grass seed, while it is quite certain that seed of questionable quality and vitality was shipped from distant points to satisfy the extraordinary demand for it. In illustration of this we have in mind the case of several Mississippi valley farmers who this year sowed clover seed that was quite foul with grass seed native or at least growing in Wyoming, which would seem to be pretty conclusive evidence that the seed came from this latter region. Whether the seed is possessed of good vitality and came from plants which will be able to stand the winters of the central northern states is a question which it will take a year or more to determine.

An excellent method of treating potatoes for the blight, which is likely to be a serious menace to the crop in wet seasons, is to take five pounds of copper sulphate and dissolve it in half a barrel of water. To this should be added five pounds of freshly slaked lime diluted to half a barrel in volume in some other receptacle. It is usually considered the more dilute the form in which the two solutions are mixed the better will be the quality of the resultant bordeaux mixture. This solution, which should be of a delicate, light milky blue tint, is for the blight only. If it is desired to swipe the bugs at the same time, paris green should be added, first carefully mixed with water in a can at the rate of about five ounces to a barrel full of the bordeaux mixture. The potato vines should be sprayed for the blight at intervals of ten days so long as the pest seems to persist.

Perhaps the two greatest enemies of the little chicks are dampness and lice, the first bringing on roup and kindred disorders and the second tending to sap the system of the growing chick and either killing it outright as a result or tending to make it susceptible to the attack of other ailments. While the chicks cannot always be kept from running out in the wet grass or being in a soaking rain, their coop or roosting place should always be dry and warm. As for the lice, they may be fixed usually by rubbing a good strong insect powder through the feathers of the body and head, by rubbing lard on the head and by putting coal oil in the cracks and on the floor of the coop where the chickens roost. Often the chicks may be supposed to be suffering from this or that ailment and look generally dumpy, yet a pest of lice be the real cause of the trouble. A careful examination of the head and under the wings of each chick will show whether this is the case.

A Siberian landowner of the name of Jovanovitch is said to be the largest sheep owner in the world, having a flock or flocks numbering 1,750,000 head, in the herding and care of which he requires 35,000 sheep dogs.

Dairymen received prices for their butter product during the year 1907 which ranged from 4 to 5 cents per pound higher than the prices received during 1906. While this did not mean a large sum for any individual farmer, it meant for all an additional income of from $20,000,000 to $25,000,000.

There are many parents with a good sized family of children who are so situated that there is little chance of their doing much for them financially, but they should see to it, so far as lies in their power, that the children are allowed to make the most of the educational advantages which the community offers.

The report of the state entomologist of Minnesota, who was requested to make a thorough investigation of the green bug damage of last year, is to the effect that the actual damage done by these bugs was very slight, but that the scare was quite serious, resulting in violent perturbations among speculators on the board of trade.

As a result of the operation of pure seed laws in force in several states, houses doing business in such states this year quoted virtually no prices on good quality clover seed because they were not in shape to guarantee to retail buyers seed which in many cases was shipped in from other states and under no guarantee, there being no federal pure seed law covering the sale of such seed.

Recently published data relative to the creameries of the United States show that there are in the country 6,000 such plants. Of this number 1,800 companies are co-operatively managed, and its number seems to be steadily increasing. Other figures compiled show that patrons of the co-operative plants realized from 2 to 3 cents per pound more for their butter fat than those who shipped by express and sold to large central plants.

The Kansas State Agricultural college at Manhattan has done a commendable work in engaging the services of an expert of the United States forest service for several weeks' talks to institutes in those portions of the state where the tree planting gospel is especially in need of being proclaimed. Besides this mode of instruction, it has issued a pamphlet on tree culture for study in all of the rural schools. Much practical good should come from efforts directed along such sensible lines.

As showing the value of an accurate testing of the milk yield and quality of the dairy herd it is stated that before Colantha IV.'s Johanna's milk was tested she was valued at several hundred dollars. After making a scientific test of her milk her owners refused for her an offer of $11,000, while one of her bull calves sold for $8,000. It is not likely that a careful testing of the cows of the average dairy herd is going to develop any $11,000 prize cows, but it will at least enable the dairyman to eliminate from his herd with dispatch those that are not paying for their keep.

The small boy about the home may very easily make a nesting place for the wrens by taking a cigar box of good depth or a good sized tin can, cutting a hole about an inch in diameter in one end and fastening it under the eaves of the shed or house or in the crotch of a tree. Pains should be taken not to have the hole large enough so that the English sparrow can get in. The wrens will not have any trouble finding the nesting place, and the songs they will sing through the summer months, coupled with their tameness and the fact that they are among the best of insect destroyers, will more than make up for the trouble one is put to fixing them a place to nest in.

A friend who recently seeded down a piece of greensward bordering the road has set it out to elm trees two or three years old, about the size of a broomstick. While there is no question that in time these little slips will make nice trees, it is going to take seven or eight years longer, and possibly ten, to get a tree equal in size to what he would have had in six years if he had cut back the roots and branches of trees three inches in diameter and set them out. The writer has a row of elm trees which were handled in this manner nine years ago which today run from ten to fifteen inches in diameter at the ground. While the ash, hackberry, hard maple and box elder may also be transplanted in this way, none of them recuperates as satisfactorily from a severe cutting back as do the elms.

A walk across a number of pastures in the locality where the writer lives shows that even in the middle of May, when they ought to be at their best, so far as rapidity and luxuriance of growth go, they are already badly overpastured. This works injustice not only to the pasture, but a double injustice to the cows which depend entirely upon the feed it furnishes for sustenance and dairy utility. Doubtless the conditions above noted are to be found in sections all over the country. It is an easy matter to pace off and get the dimensions and area of a pasture. If it is carrying cows or horses at the rate of more than one to each acre it is overcrowded, and the long headed owner will put his stock where feed is more plentiful. He may have to pay a trifle more for the next pasture, but this will prove economy in the long run.

A NEW WAY TO TREAT FLAX.

Considerable interest has been manifested within the past few weeks in the announcement which has been made of the invention of a new process of making linen from flax straw, which in years past has been a waste product except for very limited use in feeding and in the manufacture of small quantities of binding twine. In the foreign method of treating flax extensively followed in Holland from sixteen to thirty weeks are required in the process of transforming flax into linen. First comes the "rotting" or weighting down of the flax straw in pools of water exposed to the sun until the wood or "shive" rots away. Next comes the "scutching" or beating of the dry straw, followed by the "hackling" or combing, softening and bleaching. By the new process, which is the discovery and invention of a professor at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the tedious processes above referred to are reduced to mechanical and chemical operations which are completed in twelve hours, including degumming, softening and bleaching, the finished product coming out a glossy white color and with an exceedingly tough fiber. Another point in favor of the American process is that it will yield 250 pounds of fiber from 1,000 pounds of straw, while the foreign method gives but 170. In addition to this, the new process saves the seed and the shive, which is utilized in paper making, while the tow is also a byproduct that is not lost. If the new method does all that is claimed for it, it will not only do much to put the manufacture of linen on a business basis in this country, but will revolutionize the manufacture of linen abroad. However, unless the method of growing flax in this country is likewise revolutionized—that is, put on a basis where there would not be a rapid depletion of soil fertility—the new process would in the long run mean no boon to the agricultural welfare of the country.

ADVANTAGES OF RAPE.

Where sheep, young stock or hogs are to be fed during the fall and early winter months there is probably no method of producing a fine lot of succulent and nitritious feed that is superior to sowing rape seed in the cornfield the last time it is cultivated. In addition to the supply of feed which is furnished, a point in favor of the plan is that, covering the ground as it does, the growing rape takes the place of just so many weeds that would be pretty sure to befoul the fields if the rape were not there. There are a whole lot of farmers who have not yet got to the point where they appreciate the benefits of rape. A few do sow it not only in the corn, but with their oats and other small grain, as it guarantees a fall pasture for stock of the kinds mentioned that can't be beat.

A COUNTY EXPERIMENT WORK.

A western Iowa county has taken advantage of the state law which allows boards of supervisors to set aside $300 annually for the purpose of carrying on agricultural experimental work at the county farm and this year, in co-operation with and under the direction of the seed corn specialists of the state experiment station, will set aside a portion of the farm for a thorough testing of the different kinds of seed corn which are being planted in the community. The several points of variety, yield, early maturity, preparation of soil, fertilizers and cultivation will be determined so far as possible and the results summarized at the close of the year for the especial benefit of the farmers of the county and adjoining counties where much the same conditions prevail.

THE MAN, NOT THE FARM.

The vast difference that is often noticeable between the general appearance as well as the productiveness of farms lying side by side or in the same neighborhood is quite likely more due to difference in the proprietors and the methods they follow in the conduct of their respective farms than to any original difference in fertility of the soil. An intelligent and farsighted farmer can bring a naturally poor farm up to a fair state of productivity, while a negligent and shiftless one can, with a good deal less effort, bankrupt a naturally fertile one and make it an undesirable piece of property.

MORE SEED.

A good many have experienced great difficulty in getting a stand of alfalfa. In some cases this seems to have been partly the result of an improper preparation of the soil or lack of sufficient moisture at the time of germination, but quite as likely to the fact that insufficient seed was sowed. While some authorities in the northern states recommend the sowing of fifteen to eighteen pounds per acre, it is a common practice in Nebraska and Kansas, where this legume is extensively grown, to sow from twenty-five to thirty pounds per acre.

GUARD THE BIRDS.

From this time on through the summer the birds that nest about your home will have the trials of their life in getting their fledgelings past the point where they can use their wings and keep out of the way of the prowling cats. A real service can be rendered the birds by keeping a sharp lookout and throwing brickbats enough at the feline tribe to give them to understand that at certain times and seasons their proper place during daylight hours is under the wood shed or barn.

Says Men Get Drunk on Water.

Water intoxication induced by too copious use of water, externally or internally, was declared at Chicago the other night by Dr. L. D. Mason, vice president of the American Society for the study of Inebriety, to be as dangerous as overindulgence in alchol. In an address before inmates of the Washingington Home on "Why Men Drink," he also also declared "patent medicine drunkenness" almost as prevalent as the ordinary forms. He said, in part:

"Many men and women drink too much water, reducing the solids of the body and inducing water intoxication, which does them injury. Thousands are victims of patent medicine drunkenness One prominent temperance lecturer of my acquaintance drinks so much of this stuff that he is constantly under the influence of this drug or intoxicant. Most of these patent medicines are seventy-five per cent cheap wiskey. Tea and coffee drinkers also generally are intemperate. They keep themselves constantly under the influence of these stimulants to the injury of their sight and other senses. Cigars are a narcotic, and men who pride themselves on an abstinence from liquor carry one in their mouth all day, or a pipe when they go to bed."

Will Celebrate the Fourth—Nit

In order to ascertain the sentiment of the busines men in regard to the proper celebration of the Glorious Fourth and get their views in regarding to closing their several places of business on that day the Undine Fire company circulated a paper and had all merchants in harmony with the closing idea sign the same. In looking over the list we find that all with the single exception of one dry goods and novelty store and one barber shop have so signified their intentions of closing on the afternoon of our natal day. While the fire company asked only to close at 12 o'clock many of the merchants after signing their names to the paper marked after it in conspicuous letters "ALL DAY." The list contains too many names to print them all with this article and we will refrain from publishing the names of the two dissenting business men to give them a chance to add their consent to the plan of closing and making it unanimous.

Tailoring, Cleaning, Repairing, Pressing

Men's suits pressed for 50 cents. Ladies' skirts cleaned and pressed 50 to 75 cents. When your clothes seem to be worn out bring them to me and I will make them look like new. Remember, don't throw your old clothes away, for in one day I can make them look O. K.; It is worth your while to give me a trial—one trial will convince you all the while—that my shop is the place to come if you would keep your old clothes off the bum. My prices are low thereby giving you all the show. Come, see and talk to a man who believes in recognizing the Lord Jesus in his every day doings (Col. 3, 17.) It is impossible for me to even write an ad. without saying something about Jesus, this wonderful Jesus, that I learned to know by faith a year ago; it was right in Bellefonte, Pa., that the burden of my heart rolled away, and now I am happy all the day. My christian life is as an open book, watch and see if I am as I represent myself to be.

Your Truly,
G. W. Chambers.

Train Had Narrow Escape.

A whole freight train had a narrow escape from going over the embankment at Horseshoe curve on the Pennsylvania railroad Wednesday night. About five feet of a rail had been removed and was not noticed, and the engine passed over the ties and gained the next rail. One by one the cars followed until the long train had passed safely over. It is not known how the section of rail happened to be removed. At the foot of the embankment is one of the Altoona city reservoirs.

JUDGE Kunkel thinks it worth while to continue the trial of the capitol trimmers. The first jury rendered a similar opinion.

MORE men now work for the United States Steel company than for the United States government. Do you wonder that the Steel trust is so hard to control?

THE typewritten speech of Senator LaFollette weighs nineteen pounds and at times during its delivery it seemed to weigh a ton to the unwilling listeners.

IT is now claimed that there are 35,000 men in the United States who carry life insurance. No wonder there are so many merry widows, and prospective ones.

A BROOKLYN doctor claims that it is possible to get intoxicnted on water and calls it "acqua mania." The man who now goes home with an old fashioned jag on can offer the water diagnosis to his wife.

"IF you expect your clerks to be enthusiastic about the store and the business, see that you give them some reason to be," says a contemporary. "Nothing will starve to death much quicker than enthusiasm." It's pretty hard for the most loyal employe to get enthusiastic about a business that isn't effectively advertised. Requiring a clerk to push goods that have not had the the advantage of newspaper introduction is like asking a carpenter to work with dull tools. The lack of enthusiasm so obvious in the merchant who fails to grasp his advertising opportunity is very likely to communicate itself to his salespeople.

The Record of the Session.

The session of Congress just closed followed the course usual in sessions held just on the eve of a national election. The legislators then are waiting to hear from the country, and for that reason no new or pronounced policy is likely to be enacted into law at such a time. National campaigns settle a great many issues that are before the public, and their results are seldom anticipated in legislation, but much more commonly followed. No party desires to enter a campaign on a record of new policies whose practical effect is uncertain. toward which the public attitude is doubtful. The result of this caution in the present session has been the enactment of few laws making striking changes in policy, but of a large number of unsensational but highly useful statutes: No such legislation as the railroad rate law, for example, marking a step forward in the formation of national policy upon an important topic, has been passed but forty-one valuable treaties have been ratified making a noteworthy record for the advancement of international peace, the militia system has been improved, a measure justice has been done to Philippine commerce, and a number of moderate and wise labor laws have been passed.

The session's work, while it leads to the taunt from the thoughtless that this has been a "do-nothing Congress," has not, we conceive, been an unprofitable one for the country.

AS June advances the harvest of June brides becomes more prolific.

PITTSBURG has already sacrificed three boys on the altar of baseball this season.

TAFT and Bryan are of the same mind in regard to the publicity of campaign contributions but the inference is plain that they do not propose to be touched for any campaign cigars.

JUDGE Cohen of Pittsburg has been administering a sharp rebuke to lawyers who bully witnesses. The judge is entitled to the thanks and commendation of every citizen who respects himself and resents the impertinence of many members of the bar.

AND now they are trying to tell us that the capitol contractors did not receive enough pay according to the 101 measurements made during the trial now pending. Be that as it may the plan of buying furniture by measurement is a queer way of dealing in that commodity.

EX-PRESIDENT Cleveland has escaped death at the hands of newspaper correspondents who had him down and out several times, and the noted statesman is now at home, feeling quite fine. If the good wishes of the American people prevail Mr. Cleveland will live many more years.

Our Industrial Depression.

I think I am able to see the blue sky beyond the clouds which have lowered upon the country in the past few months. The present business stagnation has checked the country's financial kite-flying and general extravagance, and has restored the balance and sanity in the management of our affairs.

Every industrial collapse which the country has had has brought some needed financial improvement. The panic of 1837 compelled Congress to establish the independent treasury, in which the Government, ever since that time, has had control of its own funds. The panic of 1857, by destroying many of the wildcat banks, compelled changes in the laws in many states which strengthened the banking system of the country. One of the measures of the Civil War legislation was the creation of the national banking system. The panic of 1873 forced the dominant party to pass the greenback redemption bill of 1875, which went into operation in 1879, which brought all the country's currency up to the gold level in that year, and which has kept it up to that line ever since. The panic of 1893 compelled us to stop buying silver for the dilution of our currency, and thus saved us from a worse catastrophe later on.

I am not calling the flurry of 1907 a panic. Unlike the convulsions which I have just mentioned there has been no general dislocation in the country's industrial and financial scheme. We have neither wildcat state bank notes nor irredeemable greenbacks to combat now, nor have we debased silver. Every dollar of all sorts of American currency is worth one hundred cents in gold today. Our industrial and financial conditions are inherently solid. We need more flexibility in our currency than we have now, however, without diminishing its safety. This we are likely to get as one of the consequences of the money scare.

THE prophet who predicted "many disappointments in June" had a wise perception that the presidential nominations are to be made this month.

AN exchange refers to Bryan as the "advance agent of his own show." But this is an evident attempt to belittle him, as every observer must recognize that he is the whole show.

WE have grown into a billion dollars country—a billion dollars a year to run the federal government and take care of its activities. But the people are not oppressed with taxation and we have not yet been compelled to resort to extraordinary means to raise revenue. So long as we have the money why not spend it for the further advancement of the public good?

Unusual interest has been manifested in the announcement, made simultaneously in the United States and the United Kingdom on Wednesday, of the conclusion of an agreemeut between the governments of the two countries for a reduction in the rate on letter postage. Under this agreement, which will become operative on October 1 next, the rate on letters passing between the two countries will be reduced to 2 cents per ounce. The opinion is expressed by Postmaster-General Meyer, based on past experience, that the reduction will ultimately result in an increase in receipts, and of course he holds that a lower rate of postage will lead to freer commercial intercourse. The conclusion of the agreement and the widespread approval with which it has been received must be particularly gratifying to Mr. John Henniker Heaton, who has long been the advocate of "penny postage," but who now modestly attributes the credit for the achievement to others, including Ambassadors Reid and Bryce. It is not unlikely that the reduction may be extended to other countries in the near future.

Don't Get Flim Flammed.

Several gypsy ladies went about town Monday morning calling in the stores and offices wanting to tell fortunes and endeavored to introduce themselves by reading palms. They did not pass by this office and upon entering asked what time of day it was. Seeing that the writer possessed a watch one of the maidens wanted to hold it in her own hand while she told some good things that are to some our way. Considering the watch safer in the pocket it was kept there and when she wanted to read the writer's palm as a sample of what she could tell, we politely informed her to pass on. This is probably some of the same band who were operating in Lock Haven last Friday when one of them got the loan of a five dollar bill from a clerk in one of the offices. She wraped it in a handkerchief and after going through a series of prestigiatory maneuvers returned the handkerchief to the clerk with the caution that he should not open it until the next day or his fortune would not come true. He became a little suspicious and opened it there and found that the bill had changed to a two. He threatened arrest and the woman reluctantly gave him his five dollar bill.

Hecla Still on the Map

Tomorrow will be the first big day of the season at the famous Hecla park and the occasion will be one that will remind you that this pleasure ground was not wiped off the map by the recent flood. The park tomorrow afternoon and evening will be enlivened by the Hecla Athletic baseball team which will open the season with a festival. In the afternoon there will be two games of ball. The first will be played by the Hecla No. 1 team and the Bellefonte Y. M. C. A. while the second game will be a contest between the Hecla No. 2 and the star team from Jacksonville. There will be plenty of dancing with music by one of the Bellefonte orchestras. There will also be racing and many other amusements and in the evening there will be a balloon ascension. Refreshments will be served during the afternoon and evening. Everybody invited.

A Refreshing Rain.

The thunder shower Tuesday afternoon was one of the most timely and refreshing we have had for some time. The weather having been warm for the past week and the dust on the streets was becoming somewhat of a nuisance. The high wind which preceded the rain carried with it great clouds of dust filling the eyes of many and scattering it everywhere. The rainfall was very heavy and continued an hour's duration. The rain was quite refreshing to nature and had a tendency to cool the atmosphere.

The Amenities of Oysters.

One of the most profound remarks ever made by that profound philosopher, Thackeray, was when he passed two tubs of oysters side by side, and he saw one was labeled "1s. a dozen" and the other "1s. 3d. a dozen." He exclaimed, "How those oysters must hate each other!"

Well, "even an oyster may be crossed in love," and William Dean Howells has another tale to tell anent the psychology of the oyster. At one of the little suppers that the poet Longfellow gave to the brilliant Cambridge circle James Russell Lowell paused with the pepper box poised above his plate of oysters to say whimsically, "It's astonishing how these fellows love pepper."

"Dear me! You don't say so!" ejaculated a nice, prosy old gentleman who used to sleep through the suppers. The temptation was too strong to be resisted, and Lowell was fairly launched into an account of how a red pepper accidentally dropped into a basket of oysters had been drawn out with half a dozen of the bivalves clinging to it when the ever gentle Longfellow interposed to save his matter of fact old friend.

Grandma's Destination In Doubt.

Ethel is of the mature age of five. Recently her grandmother concluded that it devolved on her to instruct the child in religious matters.

"You must be a good girl, Ethel," she said. "Then you will go to heaven when you die."

Ethel seemed scarcely pleased with this reward for exceptional conduct.

"Don't you want to go to heaven?" asked grandma with a look of reproach.

"Oh, I don't know," temporized Ethel. "I guess not."

"Why not?" demanded grandma severely.

"Because maybe I couldn't get out," answered Ethel.

"You wouldn't want to get out," replied grandma.

"Oh, yes, I should," returned Ethel with conviction.

"No," argued grandma, "you would not. Why should you want to get out of heaven?"

"Why," answered Ethel, "I guess I'd want to go and see you once in awhile, wouldn't I?"—Woman's Home Companion.

Identified.

Although straws usually tell which way the wind blows, occasionally even the proverbial straw proves misleading.

Previously to entering the railroad yards an ablebodied loafer picked up a small, glittering object from the sidewalk and, without examining it very closely, pinned it to his coat. Three minutes later he collided with a slowly moving freight train, was hurled against a post and picked up insensible.

The train dispatcher, notified by telephone, called up Patrick Doyle, the yardmaster's assistant, and said:

"You'd better search his pockets, Doyle. Find out who he is, notify his friends and report to me."

A few moments later the report came:

"There's not a line of writing on him," said Patrick, "but we've identified him by the badge on his coat. He's a Lady Maccabee."—Exchange.

Confucius as a Poet.

For those who want to know something of the poetic abilities of Confucius, the Orient Review publishes some translations from a collection given to the Chinese world 500 years B. C. One of these is called "The Bride Cometh:"

The turtledove dwells in the magpie's nest.
One cometh as a bride to be caressed.
A hundred carriages have gone in quest.

The magpie's home the young dove hath possessed.
This lady cometh as a lifelong guest.
A hundred chariots on the road have pressed.

The turtledove shall fill the magpie's nest.
She travels far from home to love and rest.
A hundred carriages her rank attest.

One Service Barred.

A famous London barrister was upon one occasion called upon to defend a cook tried for murder, being accused of having poisoned his master. The barrister after a most able and brilliant defense of the culprit secured an acquittal. The cook, anxious to show his gratitude, said, "Tell me, sir, whatever can I do for you to reward you?" The triumphant counsel answered, "My good man, do anything you can, but for God's sake don't ever cook for me!"

CATARRH OF THE STOMACH RELIEVED.

Perhaps No Medicine in the World Has Relieved More Cases of Catarrh of the Stomach Than Pe-ru-na.

The Symptoms of Stomach Catarrh Are Heaviness After Eating, Belching Gas, Sourness of the Stomach, Sluggish Bowels.

ALDERMAN GEO. W. WEICK. DENVER, COL. SAYS:- "I HAVE USED PERUNA FOR CATARRH OF THE STOMACH AND IT HAS HELPED ME WONDERFULLY."

SOME OTHER STARTLING TESTIMONIALS.

ALDERMAN GEORGE W. WEICK, 1474 South Seventh Street, Denver, Col., Alderman Eleventh Ward, writes: "I have used Peruna for catarrh of the stomach and it has helped me wonderfully."

Chronic Stomach Trouble.

MR. SAMUEL A. SEAL, Route 2, Treadway, Tenn., writes: "It gives me great pleasure to testify to the great good your medicine, Peruna, has done for me in a chronic case of catarrh of the stomach. I was confined to my bed for some time, and could not sit up. I had tried everything that I could find recommended for catarrh, without any benefit. I tried the best physicians in Hancock County, with little or no benefit. I then tried two of the best physicians in Hawkins County, and found they were doing me no good. I was gradually growing worse.

"Then a friend of mine, passing by, handed me one of your pamphlets, and seeing how Peruna was recommended for catarrh, I sent to Rogersville, Tennessee, next morning, a distance of about fifteen miles, and procured some of your Peruna, and began taking same according to directions, and after taking it a few days I began to get better.

"I continued using it until I was able to go to work on the farm again, and now I am in very good health and do work on my farm.

"I do honestly believe your great medicine, Peruna, saved my life, and I cheerfully recommend it to like sufferers. You are at liberty to publish my testimonial, and I truly hope it may be a benefit to some one."

Catarrh of Head and Stomach.

Mr. Frank Richter, of 309 East Second Street, Winona, Minn., writes: "As a remedy for catarrh I take pleasure in recommending Peruna for catarrh of the stomach. I know what it is to be afflicted with this awful disease, and consider it my duty to say a word in behalf of the remedy which gave me such relief.

"Peruna cured me, and I know it will cure any one else who suffers from this disease. It gives me great pleasure to testify to the curative effects of this medicine.

"Peruna is a well tested and frequently used remedy, and for catarrh of the stomach it is unsurpassed.

"My catarrh was principally located in my head and stomach. I tried many remedies without success. I tried several doctors, but they were unable to cure me. I read of Peruna in the papers, and five bottles cured me."

Almost from the first dose Peruna will relieve symptoms of stomach catarrh. Peruna at once sharpens the appetite, increases the digestive powers, and gives renewed strength.

Woolrich Gets a Game.

Well, at last the Woolpickers have given the other teams of the Clinton—Centre league to understand that they too are in the race for the pennant and captured their first scalp from the Mill Hall Ponies Saturday. Although they were defeated in five games previously they did not lose heart and on Saturday they played an earnest and winning game defeating the Ponies by the score of 4-2.

The Beech Creek Red Roses played the Howard Millionaires on the former's grounds and again worsted them in an interesting and exciting game by the score of 9-5. This puts Howard in such a position that they will have to hustle to get back to the much coveted position at the top of the list.

Snow Shoe and the Mountaineers went in for a double header and broke even. In the forenoon the Mountaineers captured the game from the Coal Barons by the score of 7-1, and in the afternoon, when the tables turned, the Mountaineers suffered defeat by the score of 6-4. These games changed the standing of the clubs as follows:

	Won	Lost	P.C
Beech Creek	4	1	800
Orvis	4	3	571
Howard	2	2	500
Mill Hall	3	3	500
Snow Shoe	4	4	500
Woolrich	1	5	200

The following games are scheduled for Wednesday:

Orvis at Woolrich
Howard at Mill Hall

The Juniata college team which played the Academy here on Saturday shut the Academy boys out, the visiting team scoring 7 runs. This was the Academy's last scheduled game and being on the home ground made it a hard pill to swallow. But defeat comes to all and the boys will have to bear it bravely.

A team from Bellefonte went to Hecla park on Saturday and captured two scalps from the Hecla team. The boys at Hecla were having a festival and while they showed everybody present a good time they had to take defeat twice. The first game was lost to the Bellefonters by the score of 9-1, while in the second they gave the Hecla team a little showing and won by the score of 7-6.

The Milesburg—Centre Hall game at Milesburg was a fast game especially in the way of getting runs, both sides having a goodly number to their score and very close in the end when the score stood 14 to 13 in the visiting team's favor.

There is some talk that the game of baseball between Mill Hall and Woolrich last Saturday in which the Woolpickers defeated the Ponies will be contested at the next meeting of the executive committee. It is alleged by the Mill Hall team that there were many errors in the tallying and that they did not receive a square deal.

Foreigners Killed a Doe.

Ignorance of the law oft times gets persons into trouble and especially is this case with some of the foreign element in this state in regard to the hunting laws. Numerous cases could be enumerated where they have violated game laws and with no attempt to conceal it and they have been the sufferers financially. Last Thursday two Belgians who were employed by Theodore Boal, of Boalsburg saw a fine large doe coming down off the mountain and their first thought was to have some venison, being entirely ignorant of the fact that there was a deer season. They shot at the doe and wounded it so that it could not get away and then attacked it with clubs and killed it.

When informed that it was out of season to kill deer and that they would get into trouble and be fined and imprisoned for the offense they promptly took their departure for parts unknown. If apprehended the guilty foreigners will be taught a lesson that will cause them to open their eyes and make a study of the laws of this country to which they have come because of its many advantages and then learn to respect those laws.

Shot His Guest.

Stroudsburg, June 7.—Dayton Osborne early this morning shot and fatally wounded his friend, Wilson Bush, a railroad conductor. Osborne and Bush met last night and had a few drinks together. After the closing of the bars Osborne invited Bush to his home to sample a choice wine. Before they arrived at the Osborne home about a mile out of town the men quarreled and separated, Osborne going direct to his house. Later Bush tried to gain entrance to the Osborne house.

Osborne claims that he did not know whom the intruder was, and before firing a gun from his upper window he gave Bush warning to leave. Two shots entered Bush's body, one in the neck and the other near the left lung. Bush was taken to the hospital in a serious condition. Osborne was not arrested.

She dazzles the nations with ripples of red;
And she'll wave for us living or droop for us dead
The flag of our country forever.
She's up there—Old Glory—no tyrant dealt scars,
No blur on her brightness, no stain on her stars,
The brave blood of heroes hath crimsoned her bars,
"She's the flag of our country forever."

Contest Against Emery.

A report from Bradford states that Lewis Emery, Jr., who was elected delegate to the Republican national convention from the Twenty-first Pennsylvania district, has been notified that his seat has been contested. The letter from Elmer Dover, secretary of the Republican national committee, to Emery reads:

Reynolds, of Bellefonte, Pa., officially advising the committee that he will contest your right to a seat in the Republican national convention as a delegate from the Twenty-first Congressional district of Pennsylvania. Under the provisional of the official call for the convention you are hereby advised that a contest exists. All of the papers on file in the case will be submitted to the national committee when it meets here prior to the convention for the purpose of hearing the contests and making up the temporary rollcall of the convention."

Electric Light War at DuBois

The opening gun of the war between the DuBois Electric company, which has furnished light for that city for the past ten years, and the J. E. DuBois company which was recently awarded the contract to go into effect the first day of August, was fired when a gang of the old company's laborers appeared on the streets where the new poles had been erected and began cutting them down.

Twenty poles were cut close to the ground before the employes of the new company were aware of what was going on and upon their interference hostilities were immediately suspended. Tuesday afternoon Sheriff Allen arrived from Clearfield with an injunction got out by the J. E. DuBois company.

President Austin Blakeslee, of the old company, is out of town, but the paper will probably be served on Superintendent R. B. Blakeslee.

Hit While Playing Ball.

While playing ball Saturday afternoon at Unionville Harold Fisher was struck on the side of the head and the result was almost fatal. The young man was rendered unconscious by the blow and for some time his condition was regarded as precarious. His physicians had a serious time reviving him, but from reports later it was learned that they were a little more hopeful of his recovery. He is a young man about 18 years of age and his being injured in Saturday's game with Port Matilda has stirred up the sentiments of the parents against their sons playing the national game.

Making Good.

There is no way of making lasting friends like "Making Good;" and Doctor Pierce's medicines well exemplify this, and their friends, after more than two decades of popularity, are numbered by the hundreds of thousands. They have "made good" and they have not made drunkards.

A good, honest, square-deal medicine of known composition is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It still enjoys an immense sale, while most of the preparations that have come into prominence in the earlier period of its popularity have "gone by the board" and are never more heard of. There must be some reason for this long-time popularity and that is to be found in its superior merits. When once given a fair trial for weak stomach, or for liver and blood affections, its superior curative qualities are soon manifest; hence it has survived and grown in popular favor, while scores of less meritorious articles have suddenly flashed into favor for a brief period and then been as soon forgotten.

For a torpid liver with its attendant indigestion, dyspepsia, headache, perhaps dizziness, foul breath, nasty coated tongue, with bitter taste, loss of appetite, with distress after eating, nervousness and debility, nothing is so good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It's an honest, square-deal medicine with all its ingredients printed on bottle-wrapper—no secret, no hocus-pocus humbug, therefore don't accept a substitute that the dealer may possibly make a little bigger profit. Insist on your right to have what you call for.

Don't buy Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription expecting it to prove a "cure-all." It is only advised for woman's special ailments. It makes weak women strong and sick women well. Less advertised than some preparations sold for like purposes, its sterling curative virtues still maintain its position in the front ranks, where it stood over two decades ago. As an invigorating tonic and strengthening nervine it is unequaled. It won't satisfy those who want "booze," for there is not a drop of alcohol in it.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, the original Little Liver Pills, although the first pill of their kind in the market, still lead, and when once tried are ever afterwards in favor. Easy to take as candy—one to three a dose. Much imitated but never equaled.

Riding an Ostrich.

"I don't believe the stories told about the natives in Africa and Australia riding ostriches," said a Californian who gives riding lessons in a New York riding academy, "and I saw this pretty well tried on one occasion in my state. A cowboy who had vanquished every pony he ever undertook to break in was induced to try an ostrich. After an hour's hard work he succeeded in mounting the bird, which at first tried to shake and roll him off, but these tactics of course had no effect upon the cowboy. Then in spite of all the man could do the ostrich succeeded in getting its head around and seizing the rider by the calf of one leg. Finally the man, after much frantic kicking, got his leg free. He then doubled his feet under him, and the ostrich reached over his wings and got a good, fast hold on the man's back, throwing him heavily to the ground and trampling on him. It took three of us to chase the infuriated ostrich away, and we accomplished it barely in time to save the man's life. That's why I don't believe the native Australians can ride ostriches."—New York Press.

Mars as Prophet.

Study of Mars proves that planet to occupy earthwise in some sort the post of prophet, for in addition to the side lights it throws upon our past it is by way of foretelling our future. It enables us to no mean extent to foresee what eventually will overtake the earth in process of time, inasmuch as from a scrutiny of Mars coming events cast not their shadows, but their light, before.

It is the planet's size that fits it thus for the role of seer. Its smaller bulk has caused it to age quicker than our earth, and in consequence it has long since passed through that stage of its planetary career which the earth at present is experiencing and has advanced to a further one, to which in time the earth itself must come if it be not overwhelmed beforehand by other catastrophe. In detail of course no two planets of different initial mass repeat each other's evolutionary history, but in a general way they severally follow something of the same road.—Percival Lowell in Century.

Why the Tables Are Green.

"Billiards is one of the oldest games I know of," said a sporting man. "It is older even than croquet, which was played by French kings a great many hundred years ago. But, while billiards is so old, I'll bet none of the devotees of the ivories and the cue can tell me why a billiard table covering is green. The billiard table is always green. Well, the answer is simple enough. Billiards is merely a corruption of the good old English game of bowls, which was played on a beautifully green lawn. On rainy and winter days, however, your English sportsman couldn't enjoy his bowls, so some clever Johnny conceived the scheme of playing bowls indoors on his imitation green lawn. It was too much of a cinch, however, playing this game with the hand in such close quarters, so the cue was introduced to put skill at a premium. That's why billiard tables are green."—Philadelphia Record.

Diving For Fish.

A unique method of fishing is employed by natives along the Paniaung river. Two dugout boats are employed about thirty feet long, with two men with long poles, one in the bow, the other at the stern punting the boat along. They stretch a long rope made of bamboos and plaited grass about a hundred yards long and weighted about every ten yards with big stones. This they let down into the water, and the fish are frightened toward the bank. The divers then jump in three at a time, remaining down about twenty seconds. They carry gaffs about eighteen inches long and fishhooks with cords attached. When they strike a fish they let go the gaff, and the fish is hauled up in the boat. A big fire is lighted on the river bank, and the men warm themselves before it when not diving.—Rangoon Gazette.

A Well In a Churchyard.

Hadstock, in Essex, possesses what is probably a unique water supply. It is entirely derived from a deep well in the parish churchyard. The well is over 800 years old and is known as St. Botolph's well. The inhabitants of Hadstock declare that it contains the best drinking water in Great Britain, and, as the village in question is one of the healthiest places in Essex, there is undoubtedly some truth in their boast.—London Strand Magazine.

Feb. 29 Births.

Very few distinguished men have been born on Feb. 29 of leap year. Among them are Edward Cave of the Gentleman's Magazine, who was born in 1682, and Rossini on the same day a hundred years later. Archbishop Whitgift in 1604 and John, the brother of Sir Edwin Landseer, himself an artist, both died on this day.

Tolerant Orientals.

Both the Chinese and the Japanese have shown throughout their history great toleration in matters of religion. Even the persecution of Christians in the seventeenth century had its origin purely in political reasons. — Japan Chronicle.

The Last Word.

"Your wife likes the last word, doesn't she?"

"I don't think so," answered Mr. Meekton. "Anyway, she's mighty reluctant about reaching it."—Washington Star.

The Champion Absentminded Man.

A very absentminded professional man, with offices in a Chestnut street building, came downtown the other day and discovered that he had left his keys at home. The superintendent of the building let the absentminded man into his office, but he was still as bad off as ever. He could not get into his desk or at his safe. He pondered a little while over his dilemma; then he decided to return home for the keys. "Why not send a messenger boy after the keys?" was the thought that struck him, but that was immediately put out of the question by another thought to the effect that the boy would not be able to get in the house in case the absentminded man's wife had left home. "That's right; I must go myself," decided the troubled man, and home he went, arriving at the very door of his house before it dawned upon him that he without his keys was as bad off as a messenger boy, and the poor man's wife had gone out all right. "Oh, hang it anyway," said the absentminded man, "I ought to have telephoned her to wait for me! Why didn't I do that? Well, I will go right back to the office and phone." And he did. He phoned and phoned for some time before he could understand why his wife did not answer; then he gave up work for the day.—Philadelphia Record.

Turning the Tables.

When E. L. Godkin was editor of the New York Evening Post he was supposed by many to lack a sense of humor, but those in his employ who stood close to him knew better. One morning he sent for his young city editor.

"Last night," said Mr. Godkin, "I read in the Post an account of the suicide of a boy. Your news paragraph reported as the motive that the boy was being resisted at home in a premature inclination to marry. Mr. Blank, can you imagine how that father felt when you accused him for what was no doubt done in a sense of loving duty of being the cause of the death of his child?"

The young editor stammered an apology.

"Thank you for your explanation," said Godkin. "But," he went on in a more decided tone, "if anything like that ever happens again I give you fair warning, sir, that I will leave this paper! I will not work for a paper that says things so cruel!"—Success Magazine.

When Britain Fought For an Ear.

Perhaps the most extraordinary example of Britain going to war for "no reason at all" occurred in the reign of George II. One Robert Jenkins, an English merchant-captain, trading from Jamaica, arriving in England in 1738, reported that the sloop had been boarded by the Spanish coast guards and that, though no proof of smuggling had been found, he had been tortured and his ear torn off. All England flew into an uproar. "Jenkins' ear" divided parties and shook Walpole's ministry itself. The house of commons sent for Jenkins, and he was told to bring his ear with him. The incident grew into a crisis, though Walpole did his best to persuade people to keep their heads, but the popular indignation was so great that the next year the government was compelled to declare war against Spain.—Pearson's.

The Parish Top.

Once in England top whipping was practically ordered by law. There was a huge top formerly provided in every village to be whipped in frosty weather that the peasants might be kept warm by the exercise and out of mischief while they could not work. Shakespeare in "Twelfth Night" says, "His brains turn like a parish top." Ben Jonson in "New Inn" writes, "He spins like a parish top," and Beaumont and Fletcher have "dances like a town top and reels and hobbles." Evelyn, the diarist, speaking of the uses of willow wood, says that it was ordered that "the great town tops should be made thereof."

Is German as Bad as This?

John Ruskin was caustic in his utterances about the German language. In "Letters of Dr. John Brown" Ruskin is thus quoted:

German isn't a "language" at all, but only a "throatage" or "gutturage"—a mode of human expression learned chiefly of wolves and bears, with half of the things it calls words stitched in the middle like wasps and ants or ass panniers, and letters scrabbled out when people were mostly drunk, so that they didn't know the tops from the bottoms of them.

In Wrong.

"Your husband is greatly in need of exercise," said the doctor. "He's indoors too much. He'll have to get out more."

"Out more!" exclaimed the wife. "He's been out every night this week. That's what's the matter with him."

Realizing that he was in the wrong, the doctor left a prescription and promised to call later.—St. Louis Republic.

Nannie's Lesson.

By CARL WILLIAMS.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

"Won't you do what is right by my daughter?"

Nannie shivered at the pathos of the plea and turned to look at the speaker. It was odd that he should pick out the platform of the elevated station for his appeal, but perhaps this was some chance meeting and the only opportunity the old man had.

"She was a happy girl until she met you," the old man continued. "There was no better or happier girl in the whole city, and now"—

The voice broke through excess of emotion, and Nannie turned to see who the man might be. He was younger than she had expected, and he bore the stamp of prosperity. He was no trembling, decrepit old man, but middle aged and well to do. Still, there was no mistaking the sincerity of his speech, and Nannie shifted her glance to the young man.

With a little shuddering sob she turned and hurried aboard the train which had just pulled in.

It was not the train she wanted, but she felt she must get away from the place, for the man to whom the elder was making his appeal was Jack Laurance, her Jack. He listened to the other man largely because of the restraining hand upon his arm. He could not get away, and his handsome face plainly showed the annoyance he felt, but there was no suggestion of remorse or shame. In the train Nannie shuddered again and twisted the solitaire that was the pledge of his love.

With a gesture of despair, she finally drew the ring from her finger and slipped it into her purse. It had been the pledge of his love, and he had proved recreant to an earlier promise. Somewhere a woman mourned her broken heart and his broken promises.

At the next station Nannie changed to a train in the opposite direction. She had been hurrying downtown to meet Jack for a matinee with him. They were to have met at a downtown station because he could not get away from the office in time to call for her. What he was doing in the uptown district she did not know, and now she told herself that she did not care.

Bravely she held out until she reached the house; then she hurried to her own room to throw herself upon the bed and flood the pillow with her tears.

Less than a year had passed since Jack Laurance had come into her life, but it had been the most important year of her girlhood.

Almost from the first she had been attracted to him by his manliness and the honesty of the deep brown eyes. She had been pleased with his attentions, and when he told his love and asked her to become his wife it seemed as if her cup of joy was filled to overflowing. She had often felt a superstitious dread that something might happen, and now that fear had been realized.

Several times the telephone bell rang, but Nannie felt that she could not speak to Laurance even over the wire, and the last time she sent a message to the effect that she would write to him.

Before she could finish her letter one had come from him in which he apologized for not keeping his appointment on time and explaining that he had run uptown on business and had been delayed by an unexpected encounter with an old friend from whom he had been unable to escape.

The letter was the last thing needed to confirm Nannie in her resolution. By his own admission Jack had been uptown. He might intend to explain away his detention by an old friend, but Nannie knew what that encounter had meant, so it was a brief and formal note that accompanied the ring back to the giver.

Jack did not yield easily, but Nannie would not read the letters he wrote imploring her to explain just what the trouble had been. He told her he could not believe that the engagement was broken because he had been late in keeping an appointment, and he begged her to give him an opportunity to explain.

To Nannie the letters merely meant that he feared the old man had sought her and revealed Laurance's perfidy. Doubtless he wished to ascertain if this was the fact, that he might offer some explanation. Perhaps he even thought that he might be able to win her over, but no one could have listened to the old man's plea and accept any explanation from the wrongdoer.

For nearly two months Jack persisted in his endeavor to set things straight, and Nannie grew pale and nervous under the strain. Even her father, absorbed in business affairs, saw her distress and in his clumsy way sought to help her.

His help took the form of theater tickets, and several times she met him downtown on Saturday afternoons and went to a matinee with him. One afternoon he regarded her with eyes that twinkled.

"We're going to be real frivolous this afternoon," he declared. "I got seats for the variety show. There's a chap on the bill I met the other day. He is something of a bore when he wants to talk about himself—which is most of the time—but otherwise he's a good sort, and I'd like to see what he does."

Nannie nodded. Her father had often sacrificed his own inclinations to take her to serious plays, which she liked best. It was only fair that he should have his afternoon of vaudeville. Once ensconced in the comfortable chairs she found the entertainment rather diverting.

The chief attraction was a playlet offered by Hugh Wassingford, who had achieved a reputation on the dramatic stage, which he was now selling to advantage in vaudeville.

Nannie started at his entrance. Allowing for the changed appearance in makeup, it was the man of the elevated platform. The voice, the mannerisms were all the same, and presently the story of the sketch developed the tale of a deserted daughter, and, in the same words that had been seared into Nannie's brain, the old man made his plea, but this time to a paid actor and not to Laurance.

The trembling appeal had its effect, and the curtain fell on the two men starting in search of the girl. As the applause died down her father turned to Nannie and smiled approvingly as he saw that the girl's eyes were filled with tears.

"Great work that," he commented. "That fellow is a real actor. He recited the whole of the sketch for me at the club the other night, and, by Jove, I almost cried myself. Jack Laurance brought him over to a little smoker the boys got up. Jack says the first time he heard the act was on an elevated station. He was in a hurry to get downtown, and Wassingford held him there for half an hour, with Jack scowling into his face and looking at his watch every three minutes and hoping that he was late. But Wassingford held him to the very end. Jack thought the winner of two sketches he had the first time he played in vaudeville, and now Wassingford thinks that he can't put on a sketch until he's sure it's all right."

"I'm glad to see that Jack is here this afternoon," mused Nannie eagerly.

"He told Wassingford he would come down. He may be back in the dressing room."

"Will you please see if he is and ask him to come here?" said Nannie, and her father started off, pleased at the request. He liked Jack and was glad that there might be a chance for the breach to be healed.

He stood by the back rail while Jack took the seat he had occupied. Nannie reached out her hand and clasped his, glad that the house was darkened for the motion pictures.

"I sent for you to ask you to forgive me and to tell you that your friend Mr. Wassingford is a great actor," she whispered. "I was on the elevated station when he told you that sketch, and I heard only his appeal—and believed. Oh, can you forgive me, Jack?"

"Can I!" echoed Jack. "Well, I guess I can. You wait until we get home, and watch me. I'm so happy, dear, that I won't even hold it against you that you could believe evil of me. Wassingford is a convincing sort of chap, but I do wish he would cut out those monologue rehearsals on the street. They are bound to make trouble."

"It was a good thing, after all," whispered Nannie. "After this I shall not believe evil of you, no matter how convincing it may sound. I have had my lesson."

A Fish Mystery.

One strange feature of this sea life of the tropics is the regular recurrence of migratory swarms of fish of very small size that return in huge numbers year after year with such absolute regularity that the natives calculate on the event on a certain day in each year and even within an hour or two of the day. One such swarm of fish forms the occasion of an annual holiday and feast at Samoa. The fish is not unlike the whitebait for which the English Thames has so long been celebrated, and each year it arrives at Samoa on the same day in the month of October, remains for a day or at the most two days and then disappears entirely till the same day of the following year. Why it comes or whence no curious naturalist has yet discovered, nor has anybody traced its onward course when it leaves the Samoan group, but the fact is unquestionable that suddenly, without notice, the still waters of the lagoon which surround each island within the fringing reef become alive with millions of fishes passing through them for a single day and night and then disappearing for a year as though they had never come.—London Standard.

Seizing the Opportunity.

By J. LUDLUM LEE.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

The Alders' week end party was in full swing. The girls, in dainty muslins or smartly tailored linen suits, were strolling about, with the men in white flannels, making a charming picture on the green lawn and shadowy piazza.

Mrs. Alder was swinging in the hammock, pushing herself back and forth with her daintily shod foot, while in a cozy armchair by her side sat Fred Marshall peacefully smoking his pipe.

"It strikes my verdant young brain," he began, "that's it's about time those two people were married, settled down and lived happily afterward."

He pointed to a couple in the swinging seat under the maple tree.

"Married!" echoed Mrs. Alder.

"Married is the exact and, I believe, correct word," reassured Fred. "You should understand the significance of the word, my dear Dolly. You're married yourself, if I'm not mistaken."

"Why, Billy Richards would never dare to ask a stunning girl like Martha Vandercook to marry him. The idea is preposterous!" said Dolly Alder as she gave herself a vigorous push.

"Want to bet on it?" asked Fred.

"My dear boy, it would be like robbing the blind. Billy Richards is a sort of tame cat to Martha. You can generally find him purring to himself in some corner, and in case she wants him he's very apt to stretch himself and come at her bidding, but marriage—never!"

"I'll grant you there's something of the feline in him," said Fred. "He's slow and sure, but when he sees his opportunity he'll jump at it, all right, and probably land his mouse. I'll tell you what," he continued—"I'll wager you six perfectly good pairs of gloves against a pint of half roasted peanuts that they marry within six months," suggested Fred.

"Well, of course, in these hard times I cannot afford to throw away six pairs of gloves," soliloquized Dolly, "but, frankly, I feel as if I were taking money from a child. However, the bet is on."

Harry Alder came from the house at this moment and went to the rail of the piazza, scanned the various groups of men and girls and at last cried out to Billy and Martha in their cozy corner.

"I say, Billy Richards, it's time you had a bit of exercise, and I wish you would run the launch around to the public dock and get the tank filled with gasoline for our afternoon fishing trip," he cried, with a merry twinkle in his blue eyes. "And, by the way, Martha, would you mind going along and seeing that he buys gasoline and not other spirituous liquors around there? Billy's been awfully absent-minded of late."

Billy stretched himself, and then Martha and he went down and loosened the little launch Barbara from her moorings and were soon on their way around the point to the public dock. Martha made a picture at the wheel while Billy busied himself with the little engine.

"Billy Richards," said Martha, meanwhile steering the little launch in and out between the larger boats that lay in the bay, "the longer I know you the more stupid you seem to grow."

"Martha, my dear girl," answered Billy, "men with great minds—great thinkers—are seldom great talkers, and I'd have you to know that because I don't say things is no sign that I do not think them."

Billy's chest seemed to expand with this statement. Martha turned and looked at him incredulously.

"It may be that I have done you an injustice, Billy," she said, "but as I recall the past seven years I look in vain for any great thoughts, deeds or speeches of yours. Surely great men say something—sometimes."

She let go of the steering wheel and turned to see the effect of her stinging sarcasm. It was a bad move, for they had neared the dock, and the Barbara struck hard, throwing Martha down on her knees.

Here was Billy's chance to say something rather pertinent, but he let it pass, with the host of other lost opportunities. Billy was a wiser man than any of them thought.

The boatman made them fast to the float, and Billy helped Martha out as he gave orders to have the tank filled. He then followed Martha up the runway which connected the float with the land. The tide was very low, and the sandy bottom was easily visible through the clear, shallow water.

Martha stared down at some large black object in the sand. Billy stared too.

"Why, it's a stove, Martha!" exclaimed Billy. "Now, if we only had that up here on dry land we could go to housekeeping right away. Eh, girlie, couldn't we?"

Martha clutched the rail.

"Is this a proposal, Billy?" she asked in odd tones.

"I guess it is, dear—at least," said Billy as he put his sunburned hand over hers, "I've been trying to ask you for the past seven years, and now I've done it all of a sudden, with the kitchen furniture thrown in. What's my answer?"

Billy was eagerly waiting for the answer when a tall colored man dressed in black frock coat, white tie and vest and silk hat touched him on the shoulder.

"Thar's the stove, sir, and here's the parson," and with a low, sweeping bow, hat in hand, he bent his old back before them.

The situation was irresistible, and all three, regardless of race, creed or color, joined in a hearty laugh.

"I'm afraid the odds are very much against me," parried Martha. "It would seem that the only way out of it is for me to say 'Yes.' Let's go home and tell Dolly."

As a rule, Billy was not considered a charitable man, but he turned to the old colored preacher who had helped to shape his destiny and handed him a crisp yellow backed bill.

"Treat the congregation to popcorn and lemonade, won't you?" he said as he followed Martha down the runway.

They were soon rounding the point, and in great glee they landed at the Alders' float. The house party awaited them on the piazza. Billy helped Martha across the lawn, over many imaginary stones and up the steps. His face had taken on a boyish look, while Martha was more beautiful than ever.

"I wish I had a lemonade," sighed Paul Westover.

"All right," said their host. "What will you have, Fred?"

Fred glanced first at the young couple, who had just stepped on the porch, then slowly turned and looked at his hostess, Dolly Alder.

"I believe I'll take a pint of peanuts, if you don't mind."

DOCTOR'S ALL AGREE THIS TIME.

The most eminent writers on Materia Medica, whose works are consulted as authorities and guides in prescribing by physicians of all the different schools of practice, extol, in the most positive terms, the curative virtues of each and every ingredient entering into Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. In fact it is the only medicine, put up for sale through druggists for the cure of all diseases of the mucous surfaces, as nasal catarrh, throat, laryngeal, and bronchial affections attended by lingering, or hang-on-coughs that has any such professional endorsement—worth more than any amount of lay or non-professional testimonials.

Do not expect too much from the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It will not work miracles. It will not cure consumption in its advanced stages. No medicine will. Nor is the "Discovery" so good for a sudden attack of acute cough, but for the lingering, obstinate, hang-on-coughs, accompanying catarrhal, throat, laryngeal and bronchial affections, it is a most efficacious remedy. In cases accompanied with wasting of flesh, night-sweats, weak stomach and poor digestion with faulty assimilation, and which, if neglected or badly treated are apt to lead to consumption, the "Discovery" has proven wonderfully successful in effecting cures.

Besides curing all the above distressing ailments, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a specific for all diseases of the mucous membranes, as catarrh, whether of the nasal passages or of the stomach, bowels or pelvic organs. Even in its ulcerative stages it will yield to this sovereign remedy if its use be persevered in. In Chronic Catarrh of the Nasal passages, it is well, while taking the "Golden Medical Discovery" for the necessary constitutional treatment, to cleanse the passages freely two or three times a day with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. This thorough course of treatment generally cures the worst cases.

If you have bitter or bad taste in the morning, poor or variable appetite, coated tongue, foul breath, constipated or irregular bowels, feel weak, easily tired, despondent, frequent headaches, pain or distress in "small of back," gnawing or distressed feeling in stomach, perhaps nausea, bitter or sour "risings" in throat after eating, and kindred symptoms of weak stomach and torpid liver, no medicine will relieve you more promptly or cure you more permanently than Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Perhaps only a part of the above symptoms will be present at one time and yet point to torpid liver or biliousness and weak stomach. Avoid all hot bread and biscuits, griddle cakes and other indigestible food and take the "Golden Medical Discovery" regularly and stick to its use until you are vigorous and strong.

Foul, impure blood can be made pure by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It enriches and purifies the blood thereby curing, pimples, blotches, eruptions and other cutaneous affections, as eczema, tetter, or salt-rheum, hives and other manifestations of impure blood.

In the cure of scrofulous swellings, enlarged glands, open eating ulcers, or old sores, the "Golden Medical Discovery" has performed the most marvelous cures. In cases of old sores, or open eating ulcers, it is well to apply to the open sores Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve, which possesses wonderful healing potency when used as an application to the sores in conjunction with the use of "Golden Medical Discovery" as a blood cleansing constitutional treatment. If your druggist don't happen to have the "All-Healing Salve" in stock, you can easily procure it by enclosing fifty-four cents in postage stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, 663 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., and it will come to you by return post. Most druggists keep it as well as the "Golden Medical Discovery."

Not only does the wrapper of every bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the famous medicine for weak stomach, torpid liver or biliousness and all catarrhal diseases wherever located, have printed upon it, in plain English, a full and complete list of all the ingredients composing it, but a small book has been compiled from numerous standard medical works, of all the different schools of practice, containing very numerous extracts from the writings of leading practitioners of medicine, endorsing in the strongest possible terms, each and every ingredient contained in Dr. Pierce's medicines. One of these little books will be mailed free to any one sending address on postal card or by letter, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and requesting the same. From this little book it will be learned that Dr. Pierce's medicines contain no alcohol, narcotics, mineral agents or other poisonous or injurious agents and that they are made from native, medicinal roots of great value.

Some of the most valuable ingredients contained in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for weak, nervous, over-worked, "run-down," nervous and debilitated women, were employed, long years ago, by the Indians for similar ailments affecting their squaws. In fact, one of the most valuable medicinal plants entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was known to the Indians as "Squaw-Weed." Our knowledge of the uses of not a few of our most valuable native, medicinal plants was gained from the Indians.

As made up by improved and exact processes, the "Favorite Prescription" is a most efficient remedy for healing ulcerations, regulating all the womanly functions, correcting displacements, as prolapsus, anteversion and retroversion, overcoming painful periods, toning up the nerves and bringing about a perfect state of health. Sold by all dealers in medicines.

It's an insult to your intelligence for a dealer to endeavor to palm off upon you some nostrum of unknown composition in place of Dr. Pierce's world-famed medicines which are OF KNOWN COMPOSITION. Most dealers recommend Dr. Pierce's medicines because they know what they are made of and that the ingredients employed are among the most valuable that a medicine for like purposes can be made of. The same is true of leading physicians who do not hesitate to recommend these medicines, since they know exactly what they contain and that their ingredients are the very best known to medical science for the cure of the several diseases for which they are recommended.

With tricky dealers it is different.

Something else that pays them a little greater profit will be urged upon you as "just as good," or even better. You can hardly afford to accept a substitute of unknown composition and without any particular record of cures in place of Dr. Pierce's medicines which are OF KNOWN COMPOSITION and have a record of forty years of cures behind them. You know what you want and it is the dealer's business to supply that want. Insist upon it.

Catarrh had nearly ruined me. It had eaten away the partition in my nose; produced Asthma, Bronchitis, Rheumatism; ruined my stomach; in fact, gone all through my system. Then Grip finished me. Kerosene poured on the top of a burdock may kill it, but a better way is to run a spade through the root about three inches below the surface.

Oftentimes the fact that the butter comes hard is due to the cow not getting the salt she needs. Once a week is hardly often enough to salt the cow that is giving a generous flow of milk.

When the family cow is giving a good supply of milk she should be given free access to all the salt she wants. This will keep her in good condition, satisfying her physical needs and keeping her capacity to digest and assimilate the food she eats at a maximum.

A recent report is to the effect that peanuts are found growing wild throughout Nigeria and that immense quantities could be grown for export. As it is, due to lack of enterprise on the part of the people, not enough of the goobers are grown to supply the home demand for them as food.

Inasmuch as the curculio, which damages plums and apples, does its work by stinging the immature fruit rather than by biting it, an ordinary spray like bordeaux is only partially effective. Such treatment should be supplemented by a jarring and cultivation of the trees during the months of July and August.

Cabbage, tomato and young plants of other kinds will be much stockier and more vigorous if they are transplanted several times before being set in a permanent bed. The process of transplanting seems to develop an exceptionally strong root system, which enables the plant to make a vigorous growth when it is finally set out.

Since cultivation is given growing crops not only for the purpose of destroying weeds, but for the stirring of the soil so as to facilitate a proper circulation of moisture in the soil and radiation of heat, pains should be taken to cultivate growing things whenever possible shortly after heavy rains, so as to prevent the earth from baking and thus interfering with the processes above referred to.

Contrary to the opinion which may be at first quite naturally held by some of the little folks who may now and then glance at these notes, peanuts, instead of growing on trees and bushes, as do most other varieties of nuts, grow, like potatoes, beneath the surface of the ground. When ripe they are pulled, washed and dried, being put in large sacks for shipment to the home grocer, who has to roast them before the small boy gets them in five cent sacks.

Probably the common black crow is the worst enemy of the poultry raiser, especially on the farm where the hens have plenty of range and lay eggs on the outskirts of the farm buildings as well as roam into the wood lots and pastures with the little chicks. While the crow may consume a few grubs, the harm he does in devouring the sprouting corn and the damage he inflicts upon the poultry justify all in marking him for extermination whenever opportunity offers.

The operation of Wisconsin's recently enacted pure foodstuffs and fertilizer laws is having some very wholesome effects. A recent bulletin on this subject not only contains a discussion of the use of fertilizers for the different farm crops, but also a list of manufacturers' guarantees as to ingredients and a list of licensed fertilizers, together with a list of twenty brands licensed for sale this year. The report also shows that some 600 brands of concentrated foodstuffs are registered, four times the number registered a year ago, while 180 manufacturers are now registered, three times the number that had registered for a license a year ago, before the new law went into effect.

While there is all too little tendency with the average business organization or corporation to give that heed to the physical and moral well being of their employees which admits the necessity of one day of rest and recuperation in the seven, now and then the case of such an employer is noted. Of this type is one of the big railroad systems running west of Chicago and which by the west is known as one of the most businesslike concerns of its kind in the country. Some time ago this road inaugurated a policy of discontinuing practically all Sunday train service except that involved in the movement of through mail and express and the running of stock trains, it being deemed a mercy to the stock to transport it on a day when there would be as few interruptions to traffic as possible. This evidence of consideration on the part of these employers is unquestionably repaid manifold in the more energetic as well as willing service of appreciative employees.

The productive capacity of certain types of humanity seems to be on a par with the virility and fecundity of certain kinds of weeds. Not being able to perform a useful mission in life, the natural instinct of self perpetuation seems to be allowed full sway.

The good wife has more grounds for a kick on an empty wood box or water pail than the man of the house has on an empty salt cellar or pepper shaker. Moreover, it is quite likely to be the fellow who neglects the wood box who is most exacting when it comes to the table service.

In producing pork to sell there is probably no food that gives as large a gain in pounds as does corn. Yet if the pork is being produced for one's own use it will be more enjoyable if the ration of corn is substituted by a meal made of barley, peas and oats. This latter ration gives a somewhat better quality of meat, while the texture is such that it does not fry away as much as does the corn fed product.

According to the last report of the commissioner of internal revenue, there were used for the production of distilled liquors in the United States in the fiscal year 1906-7, 23,474,509 bushels of corn, 6,250,898 bushels of rye, 4,440,315 bushels of malt, 21,452 bushels of wheat, 17,301 bushels of oats, 1,629 bushels of mill feed, 685 bushels of barley and 4,442 bushels of other materials, or a total of all kinds of 34,211,231 bushels.

The sensible attitude to take toward the dairy cow is that she is a machine whose mission is the converting of feed into milk and butter fat. In view of the fact that the average cow has to produce 140 pounds of butter fat per annum to pay the expenses of keeping her, it follows that to have a mission that means anything to the dairyman she must produce considerably more than 140 pounds of butter annually. If she isn't good for more than this amount she is useless and should be forthwith converted into canned beef.

The large sized tiles which have been used quite extensively in years past for culvert purposes throughout many of the northern states have proved a decided disappointment in that they have been cracked as a result of allowing water to stand in them and freeze. A substitute which is being used quite extensively is a heavy galvanized iron piping quite heavily corrugated, which adds many fold to its strength. Being thickly galvanized, it does not rust readily, while it is so tough and strong that a small quantity of water freezing in it does not seem to injure it.

In many cities boards of health have been passing ordinances requiring that all cows whose milk is peddled to customers within the city limits shall be given the tuberculin test to detect the presense of tuberculosis. In some towns so large a per cent of cows are being found infected with the disease, with the accompanying decrease of those whose milk is fit for use, that the price of milk has advanced from 8 to 10 cents a quart. The populace will probably demur at this advance in price, yet most of them would pay it rather than consume milk laden with tuberculosis bacilli.

One of the causes contributing to make low priced hogs, besides the rather "hard times" which have held sway during the winter just past, is the fact that there has been an almost entire absence of hog cholera in most all sections of the country. It would be interesting to know, as a sort of side issue on the situation, whether this absence of hog cholera may not be quite closely connected with the fact that corn was very scarce and high last fall and that as a result it was fed quite sparingly, whereas in previous years hogs have been allowed to gorge themselves with the soft and immature corn. The situation presents several important aspects which it would be worth while for experts to look into carefully and report upon.

Recently enacted pure food and paint laws in the state of North Dakota have brought some interesting things to light. A careful inspection of all of the brands of paint offered for sale in the state showed that two makes of paint advertised as being pure white lead paints contained not a particle of this ingredient, while another, the direction for the use of which contained precautions not to use in damp weather, contained 20 per cent of straight water. This report, which is an exhaustive one, showed that, as a rule, paint which was offered at much less than the usual price did not contain the ingredients its manufacturers claimed or was adulterated with water or other ingredients. This seems to indicate that the best paint is seldom the cheapest.

As showing the way the federal government should and often does co-operate with the several states in the work of ascertaining the causes of plant and animal diseases or holding in check the ravages of insect pests it is a matter of interest to note that the University of Wisconsin agricultural experiment station has lately entered into an agreement with the bureau of entomology of the United States department of agriculture to carry on co-operative work in the matter of studying the problems relative to the eradication of the insect and fungous diseases which affect the cranberry crop more disastrously each year. An experiment station has been opened at Cranmoor, where data will be gathered and published in pamphlet form for the benefit of the cranberry growers of Wisconsin and other states.

BENEFITS OF IRRIGATION.

It is doubtful if there is an industrial enterprise which has ever been undertaken by the federal government which gives promise of having such far-reaching and beneficent effects as that which has been inaugurated under the irrigation reclamation service under the direction of the department of agriculture. While a dozen or more separate irrigation projects have been undertaken under the terms of the Carey act, the Truckee-Carson project was the first to be completed, and such marvelous results have been attained through the application of water to heretofore arid and barren land that the excellence of this piece of legislation has been demonstrated beyond the question of doubt, giving additional impetus and meaning to every other similar project which has been started. By means of the irrigation system referred to water is taken from the Truckee river ten miles above Wadsworth, Nev., and carried to the channel of the Carson river by a canal thirty miles long. On Jan. 1, 1906, 50,000 acres of land had been brought under irrigation in the Carson river valley, and this has been nearly doubled since that time. Grain and fruit are now growing and herds of sheep and cattle feeding where but a short time before the desert stretched as bare and barren as a board floor. Under the terms of the Carey act the fund provided by the government for the prosecution of these irrigation projects is revolving—that is, the public land is sold to the settlers. After the completion of the irrigation works the sum expended on the project is returned to the government by the settlers in ten annual equal installments. As fast as it is paid back the money is devoted to the completion of other projects, and so on until all are completed. The water rights are perpetual and are held with the title of the land. A commendable feature about the plan is the fact that the purchase of land is restricted to a limited number of acres, which tends to do away with speculation entirely and encourages the location of bona fide home seekers. Wherever water has been turned on in these irrigating systems the soil has shown a remarkable productivity. The Truckee-Carson project is but one of several which promise to transform millions of acres of bleak and arid lands throughout the mountain and Pacific slope states into veritable garden spots.

HAS THE RIGHT IDEA.

One level headed young fellow with whom we were talking not long since in reply to a question why he was this year working less land than last year said that he had learned something from the experience of his father, who, with his wife and all of the children of an age to help, was always head over heels in work. Our friend stated that the hired man problem was a serious one—not only the getting of any man at all, but the getting a man whom a fellow cared to keep after he had hired him. With a quarter section farm he estimated that he could get along with the help he could hire by the day, while if he rented more land he would have to hire a man for the whole season and find something for him to do during that time. Working the smaller farm, he figured that, while there would not be so many bushels of grain to thrash and so much corn to husk, there would also be less work and worry and a good deal less to pay out for expenses of one kind and another.

A VALUABLE WOOD LOT.

The United States government has recently come into possession of a very valuable tract of land, 295 acres of redwood timber located in Redwood canyon, near San Francisco, the gift of a public spirited resident of that locality. It seems that the gentleman was without heirs, and, fearing that if his property were disposed of according to the usual process of law, this tract of timber might fall into the hands of lumber sharks, he made a deed of gift of it to the government, with the understanding that it is to be kept intact under the supervision of the forest service. This is one of the few plots of virgin redwood timber in the country, and the officials of the department are delighted at having it placed under their charge.

HORSE STANDARDS RAISED.

One very noticeable fact in connection with the horses of the middle west, where special pains is taken in the raising of the heavier types, is the marked improvement in the character of the draft horses that are brought in and offered for sale at the small country towns. For the past fifteen years and more thoroughbred sires of very good general traits have been used and the character of the horses raised materially graded up, with the result that it is today no uncommon thing for a well matched team of high grade Shires or Percherons to fetch from $400 to $500.

TO KILL NETTLES.

While the common nettle does not prove a pest in cultivated fields, it is at times entirely too aggressive in pasture lot or on the border of grainfields or garden. This is due to the fact that the nettle belongs to the class of root stalks—that is, multiplies by root underground as well as by seed. It follows that the only way to eradicate the plant is to smother it out or dig it out of the ground, root and all. If the latter method is followed, the roots should all be taken from the ground and hung on the fence or dried and burned.

—Howard R. Roger has placed a novel weighing machine in front of the Petriken hall. From first appearances one would not think it any different from the numerous other devices for ascertaining your averdupois automatically. The response to your nickel comes in "plain English" and is easily understood. When the machine was placed ready for operation on Friday a great many doubters stood there waiting for some one to "bite" as they thought, but were surprised when some ventured to "bite" and the scales called out "one-nity," or whatever the weight was.

Persons standing near were afraid to approach the canine at first fearing it had gone mad, but it was soon evident that he had entered the happy hunting ground. The dog was quite a favorite with Mr. Fanning's little daughter and was frequently seen romping and playing about the streets. It is a very cruel hearted person who will place poison out for dogs and just punishment should be meted out to the guilty person. In the absence of High Constable Leander Green another person was was hired to bury his dogship.

Fireworks Factory Burned.

The burning of the fireworks factory of Jacob Conti at New Castle Sunday night produced a very spectacular fire. The fire occurred about 8.30 o'clock when many people were at church and the fireworks went off with an explosion that startled the whole town. Conti had two tons of powder and about $1,200 worth of fireworks in the plant at the time and as people rushed out to learn of the explosion the sky was filled with all sorts of pyrotechnics and foreigners became frantic at the sight of the weird combination of fire. The plant and two dwelling houses were wrecked, Conti and his wife and an invalid lady who lived nearby were injured by the flying rockets, etc.

Denny was taken to the Altoona hospital, and although he is badly injured it is thought he will recover.

For some time Denny had been paying attention to Mrs. Hoover, who had been living apart from her husband. Having come to an agreement with her husband, Mrs. Hoover was on her way to the train intending to join him at Williamsburg, when Denny, in a fit of jealousy, attacked her on the street.
